DEMOCRATS ACCUSED IN STRIKES

12 Navy Planes Leave San Diego For Canal Zone

LONG FLIGHT IS STARTED BY SQUADRON

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 21.—(UP) Twelve giant navy aircraft today were dropping over the Pacific ocean, 10,000 feet above the Mexican coast, on the longest non-stop, mass flight ever attempted—3087 miles to the Panama canal zone.

With characteristic navy efficiency, the patrol bombers, under command of Lieut. Robt. W. Morse, took off effortlessly from the harbor channel entrance, just before noon, rose gracefully over Pt. Loma and headed south.

Lieutenant Morse's lead plane was launched from the North Island sea-plane ramp at 11:10 a. m., and 20 minutes later had taken to the air. Following it in swift procession were the 11 other aircraft of VP-8-1 squadron, all of which were out of sight over the sea at 11:45 a. m.

The flight of the planes, with 72 officers and men, and one civilian observer aboard, is expected to take about 14 hours.

The aircrafts this afternoon were to follow the steamer lanes to Acapulco, Mexico, thence to the Gulf of Fonseca, in Central America. Then they will cut across Nicaragua and head down the east coast to Panama.

The flight was characterized by Rear Admiral E. J. King, commander of air craft, base force, as a "routine transfer" of the planes to their base at Coco Solo, S. Z.

START WORK ON FACTORY SOON

Construction of a Santa Ana factory for the Scott Aircraft Motor company will get under way within 90 days.

Announcement that the company had not only definitely decided to locate a factory here, but is, at present closing the deal for a site was made yesterday by S. N. "Buddy" Adkins, company representative, who was in Santa Ana to attend the air show.

Dyna Scott, brother of Leland Scott, inventor of the new type motor to be manufactured here, spent several weeks in Santa Ana recently looking over prospective factory sites and returned to Kansas City, where he recommended establishment of the factory here. Later he returned and entered negotiations for a site. The deal is being completed this week, Adkins said.

Under present plans the first unit of the factory and its equipment will represent an investment of more than $100,000 and will offer employment to between 25 and 30 mechanics. Adkins said that the company is adequately financed and is not offering stock for sale.

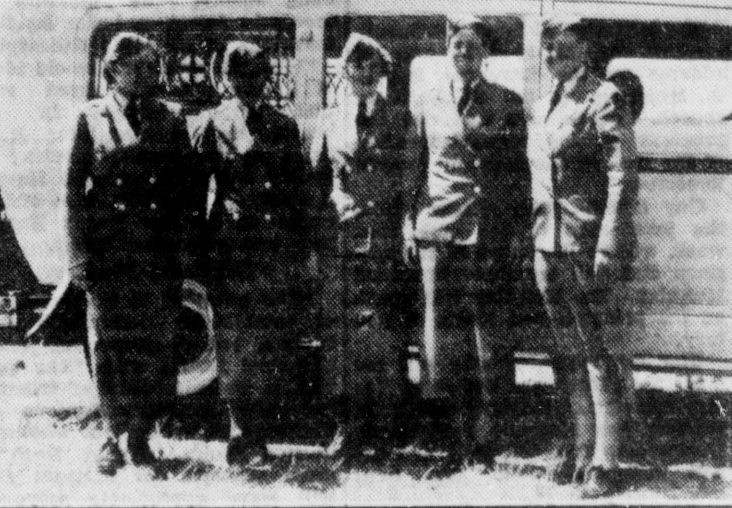

Adkins left today for Kansas City, where he will join the Scott brothers to take the larger type motor to be manufactured by the company, to Columbia university for final tests. The smaller motor has already passed the tests.

Adkins said that as soon as the tests are completed work will start on the factory here and manufacture of the motors will be started early in 1938.

Santa Ana's first annual Aviation Show held yesterday at Eddie Martin airport under auspices of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, attracted outstanding figures in the aviation world to Santa Ana. Upper photo shows a detail from the Aerial Nurses' corps, on duty at the airport. Reading from left to right the nurses are: Laura Cheverton, Marie Wallace, Evelyn Daniels, Margaret Drenin and Laura Schimmoler, president and founder of the organization. Lower photo is the official party that came to Santa Ana on the American Airlines Sleeper airplane. At extreme left is Bart Cox, former Santa Ana athlete and operations manager for American Airlines; Arthur Beggs, company official; Mrs. William Cheney, wife of the co-pilot. In the center of the front row is Miss Dorothy Thomas, stewardess.

First Air Show Draws Big Crowd

BY PAUL VISSMAN

Twenty thousand people yesterday declared Santa Ana's first aviation show a success. And 20,000 people can't be wrong.

Sponsored by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce and directed by Dale Decker, the show at Eddie Martin's airport brought to Santa Ana airplanes valued at half a million dollars. Several of these were given their first public showings and demonstrations during the show.

Arrowbile Demonstrated

Waldo Waterman, inventor and builder of the Waterman Arrowbile combination automobile and airplane, created a sensation when he landed his machine on the airport in the morning. Later in the day he created a super-sensation when he gave his first public demonstration. Rolling up to the hangar, Waterman removed the wings from the machine, which is powered with a Studebaker motor, and demonstrated the machine as an

TWO KILLED IN CAR ACCIDENTS

Excessive speed was blamed today for Orange county highway accidents which took the lives of two men during the week-end. In a dozen other accidents reported to police and hospital authorities, more than a dozen persons were injured.

Deaths of Hugh Cradick, 31, employee of the Bank of America, and Needles, after an accident on 101 highway near Newport Beach, Saturday night, and of Joe M. Garcia, 26, Route 1, Howe ranch, Yorba Linda, early today in Santa Ana canyon, brought the traffic fatality toll this year, to 45. Last year at the same time, 28 had been killed in traffic.

Driver Arrested

As a result of the Santa Ana car accident, a driver was arrested.

FORMER RESIDENT OF COUNTY KILLED

Floyd Newman, 24, former resident of Garden Grove, was killed near Selma Saturday in a traffic accident. Traveling south from Medford, Ore., where he made his home, he apparently fell asleep at the wheel and crashed into a tree, according to police who investigated. He died at the Selma hospital Saturday afternoon.

He left his wife and baby with friends in Sacramento to continue the trip to San Diego alone. A hitch-hiker, whom Newman had picked up, lost a leg as a result of the crash.

The former Garden Grove man was a distant relative of M. A. Stephenson, Anaheim police officer, and he had planned to stop at the Stephenson home on his trip south.

3 RUSSIANS FLIERS PLAN TOUR OF U. S.

PEARSON FIELD, Vancouver, Wash., June 21.—(UP)—Three Russian fliers who conquered the polar flight from Moscow to the United States will tour the United States for about a month before returning to Moscow, Russian Ambassador Troyanovsky revealed today.

The tour will start from Swan Island airport in Portland, Ore., this afternoon when the party will embark by a chartered plane for San Francisco, the ambassador said.

The plane which made the 550-mile non-stop flight which ended here at 8:22 a. m. (PST) Sunday when a dense fog prevented the fliers from reaching San Francisco, 592 miles farther south, will serve as a "technological guinea pig" in the interests of Soviet aviation.

It will be carefully dismantled here and crated for shipment to Russia, where each part will be scientifically inspected and studied by Soviet technicians. In this way, Troyanovsky said, the effects of the epochal flight on the ship, will determine future development of Russian aviation.

STEEL FIRMS TO REOPEN PLANTS

CLEVELAND, June 21.—(UP)—Chairman Tom Girdler of Republic Steel corporation today told the federal steel mediation board that discussion of a signed contract with the Committee For Industrial Organization—sole issue in the seven state steel strike—was "futile."

As the Republic and Youngstown Sheet and Tube company officials announced plans to defy picket lines and reopen plants in the Youngstown area tomorrow, Girdler and executives of three other struck companies appeared before the mediation board an hour after the board had conferred with CIO Chairman John L. Lewis and his

GIRL, 3, IS SHOT BY SMALL BROTHER

Accidentally shot through the stomach by a bullet from a .22 caliber rifle in the hands of her small brother, Helen Mireles, 3, Atwood, was in "fair" condition at county hospital today.

Tedoro R. Mireles sr., father of the girl, had been using the weapon Saturday evening in an effort to kill some rats on his ranch place, deputy sheriffs who investigated, reported. Placing the gun on the ground near a woodpile, Mireles entered the house. The girl's brother, Tedoro Jr., 3, picked up the gun and it accidentally discharged at a distance of 12 feet from the girl.

Late News Flashes

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—Administration senate forces, battering down a stubborn opposition, today defeated the Byrnes amendment which would require local sponsors to provide 40 per cent of project costs under the $1,500,000,000 work relief bill. Previously the senate defeated the proposal of Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson to amend Byrnes' amendment to reduce the local contribution requirement to 25 per cent.

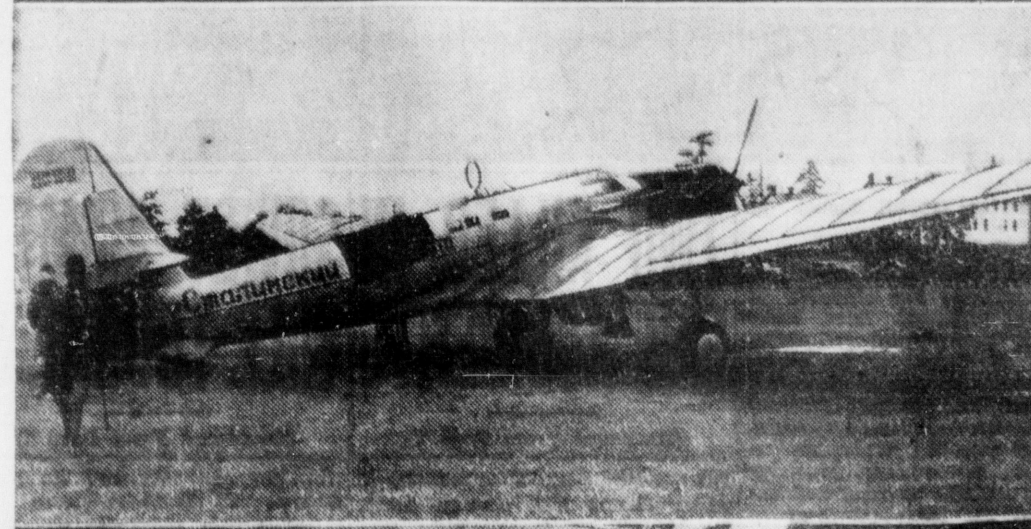

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—(UP)—The federal circuit court of appeals here today ruled sitdown strikes "not bonafide" and ordered eviction of 256 men who have held the Apex hosiery mills since May 6.

WINTERS, Cal., June 21.—(UP)—Approximately 30 per cent of the fruit pickers harvesting the $1,000,000 apricot crop in this area struck today, demanding increased wages, an eight hour day and no Sunday work.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—The house today passed and sent to the White House a bill suspending the requirement for annual assessment work on mining claims held by location in the United States. The bill applies retroactively from July 1, 1936 to July 2, 1937.

SOVIET FLIERS BLAZE NEW AIR TRAIL

Blazing the most challenging trail in aviation's history, the three Soviet fliers fell a few hundred miles short of their goal—San Francisco—by reason of unusually heavy fog and weather in the Pacific northwest. Below, the Russian trio, with their trans-Polar plane after they landed at Pearson Field, Vancouver, Wash., and the plane was placed under military guard. Left to right, the men are: George Baidukov, co-pilot; Valeri Chakalov, pilot; and Alexander Baidukov, navigator.

CHAUTEMPS TO FORM CABINET

PARIS, June 21.—(UP)—The Socialists warned off the grave threat of labor troubles, disorder and further damage to the franc today when they ordered their followers to maintain calm, as requested by Leon Blum, retiring Socialist premier.

As a result of the order, the maneuver of labor extremists to provoke a general strike was abandoned. The building trades workers were on a half-day strike, ordered a week ago in protest against the haggling of employers over wage increases. Ninety per cent of building throughout France was tied up but everything was orderly.

Camille Chautemps, radical Socialist leader, worked on formation of a cabinet to replace that of Blum, who was forced to resign when the senate refused to grant him extraordinary powers to cope with the financial situation.

Retirement Plan Voted By House

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—The house today passed and sent to the senate the Crosser bill setting up a new railroad retirement program. A standing vote was 340 to 0.

ANTI-LYNCHING MEASURE BACKED

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—The senate judiciary committee today voted approval of the Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynching bill and voted a favorable report on the Vandenberg child labor amendment affecting children below 16 years of age.

The vote on the anti-lynching bill was 13 to 3.

The committee approved the action of its subcommittee in voting to substitute the Wagner-Van Nuys bill in place of the one which would levy a fine on counties from which any lynch victim is abducted but not on the county in which the lynching takes place unless it should occur in the same county from which the victim was taken.

NORRIS URGES USE OF POWER

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—Sen. George W. Norris, Ind., author of the measure to divide the nation into seven authorities similar to T.V.A., told a senate agriculture subcommittee today that it would be an "economic sin" not to utilize the hydroelectric power possibilities which would be developed incident to the program.

"Most of those who oppose this measure, oppose it because of its power aspects," Norris said, "but I believe it would be an economic sin not to utilize the power resources available."

He said the power phases would both help pay for the projects and bring the benefits of electricity to more people.

Norris appeared as first witness in the subcommittee's hearings. He emphasized, however, that power development, incident to the flood control projects, should be secondary to navigation and flood control "both as a Constitutional proposition and from the point of view of benefits to the people."

The principal objects of the bill are to improve navigation and to control flood waters, he said.

"Some action must be taken to control floods in the United States," Norris said, "and the national government is the only power that can do it."

U. S. ACTS TO END S. F. HOTEL STRIKE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—(UP)—The federal government intervened in the San Francisco hotel strike today when Walter Mathewson, conciliator for the federal labor board, called a conference of leading factions in the 52-day-old dispute.

Mathewson said he hoped the conference would result in a "complete settlement" of the strike.

Those who met with him included representatives of hotel operators, members of the San Francisco labor council's advisory committee and executive board, and H. P. Melnikow, advisor to the joint strike committee.

U. S. AGENTS CLAIM MRS. PARSONS ALIVE

PERPIGNAN, France, June 21.—(UP)—The French captured 16 aboard the Spanish steamer Joven Teresa today and released them in France.

SUPPORT FOR C. I. O. HEAD IS CHARGED

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—Rep. Allen T. Treadway, R., Mass., ranking Republican member of the house ways and means committee, charged in the house today that the administration was "condoning" strike activities of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Claims Support Demanded

"These efforts by John L. Lewis have been abetted by the administration," Treadway said. "It is even said that the head of the C.I.O. has demanded support of the administration as remittance for a $500,000 contribution to the last Democratic campaign fund."

Treadway said that Mary Heaton Vorse, magazine writer wounded by a bullet at Youngstown, O., during a fight between deputies and pickets, "is a cousin of mine."

"It is indicated that she and others were acting within their rights as American citizens," he said.

Treadway contended that the attitude shown by the administration toward the strikes "is an indication of socialistic and communistic leanings of the administration."

'One Man Control'

"It is a further indictment against the administration by indicating a move toward one man control in Washington," he shouted.

Earlier, Rep. Eugene Cox, D., Ga., charged that the government "has surrendered its prerogatives."

COUNCIL TO BUY SANTIAGO LAND

Purchase of one and one-half acres of land adjoining Santiago park will be authorized by the city council at its meeting this evening, according to information given. The Register today by a member of the council.

The property will be purchased of John Spykerman. The city will pay $2500 for the land which will make possible an 180-foot entrance to the park on North Main street. Acquiring of the land will permit the city to make a divided driveway with a three-cornered garden in the center.

With the acquisition of the acre and a half the city will have more than 20 acres in Santiago park. There are 60 trees on the Spykerman property, giving the city additional space for picnic tables and barbecue stoves.

According to the information given a representative of The Register, the city trustees individually indicated their approval of the purchase of the Spykerman property and it already is out of escrow. The deal will be officially sanctioned tonight and the city clerk will be authorized to draw a warrant for the purchase price.

Work of constructing the new driveway into Santiago park has been under way for several days and it is believed it will be completed by the Fourth of July, it is said.

Sunburn Legal Now That Summer's Here

Today is the first day of sunburn and prickly heat, tra la!

It's the longest day of the year, which gives the bill collectors a big advantage. This date, June 21, officially opens the calendar summer.

And the beach resorts hope it is true. So far, they've been rather foggy about when the season really opens. They still were foggy today.

However, this is California, so it doesn't matter what the calendar says, or whether there is fog or sun. If you go somewhere, you'll discover that everybody else is there ahead of you.

It's summer today. So what?

EDEN OIL SUIT AGAINST COUNTY UNDER WAY

HEATED LEGAL BATTLE LIKELY AS FIGHT OPENS

Seventeen hundred dollars' worth of road oil that failed to smooth troubled political waters here last fall, held the attention of superior court here today, as Superior Judge C. F. Warner, of San Bernardino, began trial of the Eden Oil company's suit against Orange county, to collect for the oil.

The county refused payment of bill for the oil, something over $1700, contending that the oil didn't even smooth highways where it was spread, much less political waters.

Open Market Campaign
First developing last autumn as a campaign issue hotter than the oil itself, the controversy came to a legal head today with William Iverson and Don Jerome, owners of the Eden refinery, backing their product with the suit against the county.

The county filed a cross-complaint for damages, claiming that the Eden oil proved defective, and that subsequently the county was forced to buy other oil in the open market at a price higher than specified in the Eden contract. Indications of a hard fought legal battle were early in evidence at today's trial, as attorneys for plaintiff and defendant jockeyed for advantages. Iverson, Jerome and their plant manager, Vernon Davis, were the Eden witnesses summoned at the forenoon session. Iverson and Davis giving descriptions of the treatment process for road oil in their plant and the method of handling the finished product, as delivered to the county.

Tests Argued
The county claims tests showed the oil to have 26 per cent water and sediment in it, whereas the specifications under the contract allowed only two per cent. The Eden company contends that no proper tests were ever made of the oil, to determine what its content was.

Iverson and Jerome testified that they had heard no protest regarding the oil, and that no requests for test reports ever were made of them. Iverson said the first he heard that there was complaint against the oil was about a week before the election last November when Nat Neff, then highway superintendent, showed him purported laboratory tests made in Los Angeles.

Iverson Questioned
Iverson said that he had seen county truck drivers take samples of oil occasionally in small cans, from the loading spout of the storage tank; he hadn't known why the samples were taken. The plant made its own routine tests, he said. The method of making these tests was described by Davis, the plant manager, who said the test included all from various levels in the tank, from top to bottom.

On cross-examination, B. Z. McKinney, special counsel for the county, questioned Iverson at some length as to whether the oil and water would remain mixed together in an emulsion after being pumped into the storage tank, for delivery to the county. Iverson said there would be a tendency for the water to drop to the bottom of the tank.

Both prosecution and defense executed moves today which they believed important to their respective sides. Attorneys Charles D. Swanner and L. W. Blodgett, representing the Eden company, introduced the contract, attached to which were specifications relating to the oil.

DEATHS CLIMAX YOUNGSTOWN STEEL STRIKE

Bitter struggle between C. I. O. strike pickets at the Republic Steel plant in Youngstown, Ohio, and hundreds of police left a trail of two deaths and more than a score of injured Saturday. Tear gas, clubs, gun butts were used, and bullets were fired from surrounding hills. This Acme Telephoto shows a steel picket at the left, confronting a policeman with a tear gas gun, while to the right are other armed officers.

how the test of oil should be made.

Officials Interested
This was believed to be laying the groundwork for objecting to all county testimony later, under the Eden theory that no proper test was ever made of the oil, to show whether it was good or bad. McKinney and District Attorney W. F. Menton, who was assisting him, read into the record an excerpt from the contract requiring that test reports be furnished the county by the Eden Oil company for every 750 barrels of oil delivered. Iverson admitted that was not done. His attorneys, however, disputed the point whether such reports were required.

Various present and former county officials were in the courtroom, waiting to testify. One of them, Dr. F. W. Slabaugh, former county purchasing agent, did testify as an Eden witness, regarding the award of the contract.

and a handful of lawless people" and demanded an end to "the present wave of terrorism."

Simultaneously, Rep. Clare E. Hoffman, R., Mich., introduced a bill designed to prevent interstate transportation of "any person for the purpose of closing a plant engaged in production of goods which would reach interstate commerce."

The measure was introduced as an amendment to the bill approved last session preventing interstate transportation of strike-breakers.

"The change," Hoffman said, "is designed to make the act apply also to those who go from one state to another for the purpose of causing, not strikes, but shutdowns."

The Indian population of the United States is steadily growing. In 1865, there were 244,574 Indians in the country; now there are more than 340,000.

TWO KILLED IN SOVIET AIRMEN CAR ACCIDENTS WILL TOUR U. S.

yon accident, early this morning, in which Garcia met instant death, Jose Ortega, 27, Perris, Calif., was held in county jail here on drunk and manslaughter charges. He escaped with slight injuries when his car went out of control on a curve and ran into an embankment. No other cars were involved in either accident.

According to witnesses who were following the Cradick car, Cradick evidently reached down in the car to pick up something on the floor, lost control, hit a 30-inch bank, the car turning over several times. Cradick, injured about 7:30 p. m., died shortly before midnight in the county hospital from possible skull fracture and internal injuries.

The body of Cradick was removed to the Dixon funeral chapel, Costa Mesa, where funeral arrangements are being made. No inquest will be conducted.

Inquest Planned

An inquest for Garcia is pending at the Smith and Tutill mortuary, where the body was taken.

Reuben Doss, 26, Los Alamitos, jailed on a drunk charge after an accident yesterday, was fined $10 in Orange court today. None was injured in the accident, involving the Doss car and one operated by LeRoy Nave, Santa Ana. The accident occurred as Nave drove west on East Chapman at Tustin avenue. According to Officer Thomas Towns, Orange, Lorene Rogers, daughter of Santa Ana Officer L. C. Rogers, was riding with Nave at the time. The Nave car was knocked 22 feet when struck in the rear by the Doss car.

Curve at Los Angeles and Palm streets, Anaheim, was scene of a Saturday afternoon accident. A light truck, approaching Anaheim from Spadra, crashed with a car operated by a visitor from Mexico City. The woman most seriously injured was Mrs. Laura Marron, 40, Mexico City, who had come to Anaheim with her chauffeur, Jose Almazan, 30, driver of the car, to take her two sons home with her from St. Catherine's Military academy. She was taken to Johnston clinic with a broken collarbone. John Mon, 24, truck driver, Brea, was badly bruised and his passenger, Joe Diharce, 23, Brea, cut and bruised.

Car Hits 3 Machines

Raymond A. Gorman, 22, U.S.S. Dolphin, San Diego, suffered badly lacerated face early today at the Santa Fe tracks and East Fourth, as a car registered to John Duggan, same address, crashed into three parked cars belonging to Samuel Edgar, 521 East Walnut; James Hearbick, 714 South Van Ness, and Max Heiber, San Francisco. Duggan suffered bruised face; John Foster and B. L. King escaped injury. Gorman was treated at county hospital and transferred to Naval hospital, San Diego, today.

No one was reported injured Saturday night at Washington and Grand as a car registered to George Gregg, Santa Ana, was wrecked.

Near Main and Sixth, Tustin, last night, Charles Patton, 17, Tustin, and James Handley, 15, Tustin, were badly cut as a motorcycle, operated by Patton, and a car operated by James C. Reynolds, 19, Los Angeles, collided. Handley was with Patton. They were taken to Santa Ana Valley hospital by W. H. Smith's Orange County Ambulance service. Reynolds stopped to pick up a hitchhiker, officers said, when the motorcycle ran into the rear of the car. None was injured at Manchester and Commonwealth, Buena Park, yesterday when cars driven by Edward A. Reeves, 19, Norwalk, and Dick Short, 40, Huntington Park, collided.

FIRST S. A. AIR SHOW SUCCESS

automobile. The machine attains a ground speed of 70 miles per hour. Replacing the wings he took to the air for a flying demonstration.

The show was scheduled to get underway lunch served pilots by the chamber of commerce. Enthusiasts, however, began pouring out to the field as early as 10 a. m. to watch the planes arrive. By noon practically all parking space at the airport was filled and cars lined the highway for a half mile.

175 Planes At Field
The first ship to arrive was an Avonca piloted by M. E. Madsen, of Riverside. From then on planes dropped from the sky like birds going to roost, until 175 machines were parked along the landing field.

One of the most colorful arrivals was the squadron of Ryan ships from the Ryan Aeronautical school of San Diego.

Johnny Fornasero, chief instructor, and test pilot for the organization, wired Deckert, from San Diego, that the squadron would arrive at 11 a. m. Promptly at that time the five chromium covered planes landed at the field and taxied to their stations.

The second sensation was the arrival of the American Airline DST Sleeper transport, piloted by Johnny Martin. The huge ship was taxied to a station in front of the hangars and a reunion took place. With Johnny Martin, as chief pilot; Bill Cheney, former Santa Ana pilot, as co-pilot and Bart Cox, former resident of Santa Ana and outstanding high school athlete, who is operations chief for the American Airlines, the arrival of the sleeper plane was the next thing to an "old home week."

Officials Introduced
The real show started at 1 p. m. when Rex Kennedy, president of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, was introduced by Dale Deckert, and in turn, introduced Mayor Fred Rowland, who delivered a brief address of welcome to pilots and other guests.

Others introduced during the brief opening program were: City Councilmen Ernest Layton and William Penn, Willard Smith, chairman of the board of supervisors; Fire Chief John Luxemburger and Mrs. Luxemburger; Elmer Heidt, chairman of the Traffic Safety commission of Santa Ana; Barbara Rowland, daughter of Mayor Rowland and former holder of the "California Outdoor Girl" title; members of the Aerial Nurses' Corps; "Tiny" Broderick, first woman parachute jumper, and the Misses Agnes Brady, Virginia Scott and Jane King; Santa Ana Junior College girls who acted as hostesses during the day.

The show was a contrast of planes, with every type machine on the west coast being demonstrated. Just by way of comparison two tiny single-seat Rose Parakeet ships were wheeled under the wings of the giant airliner, when they landed at the field.

Gives Stunt Exhibition

The first exhibition of stunt flying was given by Fornasero of the Ryan Aircraft corporation. Taking his ship aloft he went through every maneuver known to aviation, including Immelman turns, snap barrel rolls, slow barrel rolls and loops. He ended the exhibition with a demonstration of inverted flying. Later in the day "Chuck" Botsch, pilot from Mines field, Los Angeles, gave another exhibition of stunt flying.

Interest in stunt flying died for a few moments, however, when Tony Lavier arrived in a tiny racing plane designed by C. C. Flagg of the Light Aircraft Development company of San Diego. Zipping over the field at a speed of 153 miles per hour, Lavier circled the airport several times before landing. Suddenly swooping toward the ground he set the tiny ship onto the runway while traveling 90 miles per hour.

There were other stunt flights but the principal interest centered on inspection of the various types of airplanes and their demonstrations of flying power.

Big Ship Inspected

The chamber of commerce had issued 1000 courtesy cards entitling their holders to a trip of inspection through the American Airline sleeper ship. From the time the big ship arrived, until it left at 3:30 p. m. there was a crowd of visitors. Before leaving it was announced that the ship would return some time and all holders of courtesy cards, who did not have an opportunity to go aboard, were advised to retain their cards.

The grounds were adequately patrolled by national guardsmen and Boy Scouts, Santa Ana police officers and deputy sheriffs under direction of instable Jesse Elliott.

GREEN CONDEMNS POLICIES OF CIO

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter made public today by Rep. John Luecke, D., Mich., charged that "evil influences" have shaped Committee for Industrial Organization policies resulting in "riots, the reprisals, the violence and the deaths."

Green, declaring that he had been apprehensive over the direction of CIO policies, charged that "an evil influence has caused groups of newly organized workers connected with the CIO to follow a destructive policy."

"As a result," he said, "public opinion is turning against them. I pointed out in a statement I made condemning sitdown strikes. The riots, the reprisals, the violence and the deaths which have occurred can be traceable to one destructive influence."

HUGHES PLEADS FOR DEMOCRACY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 21.—(UP)—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the U. S. Supreme court today called for preservation of America's democratic institutions against "the pressure of economic forces and the insidious teachings of an alien philosophy."

"We still proclaim the old ideals of liberty but we cannot voice them without anxiety in our hearts," he said in an informal address at the annual meeting of Brown university alumni. He was a member of the 1831 class and his grandson, Charles Evans Hughes, 3rd, was graduated today.

Individual Freedom

"The question is no longer one of establishing democratic institutions, but of preserving them," the chief justice said. "The question is no longer one of triumph over sectional discords and unifying the nation, but whether a unified people, putting forth its great strength for national ends, will leave appropriate scope for individual freedom."

"The question is not one of adequate power of government, designed to keep clear the highways of honest endeavor, but how that power shall be used. Safe as we may still be in the present, what of the look ahead? Are our democratic institutions growing weaker, and under the pressure of economic forces and the insidious teachings of an alien philosophy, will our democracy be able to survive?"

Hughes said the answer lay not in a "pessimistic surrender" but in a quickened resolve "to treasure and utilize to their fullest extent the resources of reason."

Girdler said his company would not enter into an oral or written agreement with the CIO and added that "any discussion of this is futile."

In regard to maintenance of the status quo pending negotiations, as suggested by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Mr. Girdler said his company "will not be a party to any such arrangement."

Girdler said his company would not sign a contract with any irresponsible party and that he regarded the CIO as "utterly irresponsible."

Protection Assured
Representatives of both companies announced advertisements were appearing today in Youngstown newspapers advising workers that the plants will be reopened as a result of assurances by peace officials that protection can be provided.

"All employees who want to work should enter the plants at 7 a. m." President Frank Purnell of Sheet and Tube, said in the announcement.

Strike leaders doubled the duty hours of pickets. Threats were made over the weekend by local S.W.O.C. representatives that "no wheels will turn" in other plants if the strike picket lines are broken.

The Republic mills were the scene of rioting Saturday night in which two pickets were killed. A sympathy strike of truck drivers has been called here to protest "police tactics."

GERMAN OFFICIAL POSTPONES VISIT

BERLIN, June 21.—(UP)—Dr. Konstantin Von Neurath, foreign minister, has postponed indefinitely his projected visit to London, it was announced officially today.

The visit had been expected to result in important discussions of general European affairs.

ic forces and the insidious teachings of an alien philosophy, will our democracy be able to survive?"

Hughes said the answer lay not in a "pessimistic surrender" but in a quickened resolve "to treasure and utilize to their fullest extent the resources of reason."

LOYALIST MINES KILL HUNDREDS

MADRID, June 21—(UP)—An estimated 750 men, with tons of munitions and machine guns, were buried in the hospital clinic today when the loyalists exploded two mines.

The hospital is in the University City sector in the western part of the capital. Insurgents have been besieged there for more than six months and some of the fiercest battles of the siege of Madrid has taken place there.

Two wings of the hospital had been blown up previously. The mine was set off shortly before daybreak, blowing up three stone walls of the hospital, destroying 70 yards of wall and blowing the hospital into three sections, leaving only one wall standing.

The loyalists retired to their fourth lines before the explosion after luring the insurgents to the front line with rifle and artillery fire at midnight.

Not a single shot was heard in University City this afternoon when newspapermen visited the scene of the explosion.

An official announcement said 400 were killed.

MARTIAL LAW SET UP IN BILBAO AREA
BILBAO, June 21—(UP)—Nationalist authorities declared martial law in Bilbao area today, and setting up an emergency government, poured thousands of men into the city ready for a new advance against the retreating Basque loyalist army.

For the moment, contact between the victorious nationalists and their opponents seemed broken. The main Basque army was far to the west, along with hundreds of thousands of refugees—including, apparently, three-fourths of the people of Bilbao—who were crowding into the Santander region.

Gen. Jose Fidel Davila, commander in chief, named Col. Garcia Valino acting military governor, and Valino in his first decree proclaimed martial law. Miguel Ganuza Del Riego was named civil governor of the region.

Wrights May Make Wrong, Police Say

Here's a case where two Wrights both may make a wrong, according to Santa Ana Officers George Boyd and William Nielsen. Cruising Santa Ana streets last night, the officers apprehended A. J. Wright, 41, La Habra, at 10:15 p. m. He was traveling 45 miles per hour in the 25-mile zone on North Main at 15th street, the officers declared, and he had an operator's license with improper address.

Exactly 25 minutes later, the same officers stopped another asserted speeder. "You name, please," the officers said. "My name is Earl E. Wright," was the answer. Earl E. Wright, local banker, of 224 Greenleaf, was ticketed at 45 miles per hour in the 25-mile zone of South Main at Pine. The ticket also said Wright No. 2 had faulty tail light. Both Wrights must appear before City Judge J. G. Mitchell within five days, according to law.

LEGION DEFERS SESSION
 There will be no meeting of Santa Ana post, American Legion, Thursday night, according to Clay Minnix, adjutant of the post. Minnix said that during June, July and August, the post will meet but once monthly. The meetings will be held on the second Thursday of each month.

Audience, on Strike, Sits Tight

The 800 persons in the audience (above) at a WPA theater in New York whoop it up as they join an all-night sit-down strike to protest the threatened dismissal of nearly 25 percent of the WPA workers on a music project. The night air chilled their ardor, though by midnight the crowd was halved, by dawn only a few stragglers remained in the theater.

Mother-In-Law Is Named In Attack

Explaining that his mother-in-law had used a milk bottle to raise welts on his head, Joe Castro, 914 Logan street, last night asked Officers Harry Pritchard and J. B. Stephenson to give him first aid.

The officers called in Officer F. L. Grouard, who took Castro to county hospital where scalp wounds were sewed. Castro indicated it would please him if all dairymen should use cardboard cartons as milk containers, in the near future.

rites popular at tabernacle

The attendance last night indicated a growing interest in the evangelistic meetings at the Bible tabernacle on South Sycamore. The largest crowd yet, poured in through its doors, and sat in attention from the opening item which was a film of the coronation of George VI, till the benediction was pronounced by Evangelist R. A. Anderson.

The congregation joined in singing the old songs of the gospel led by the large tabernacle choir, under the direction of song-evangelist George Freeman.

Special numbers were rendered by a mixed quartette and the choir. Evangelist Anderson spoke with his usual power and sincerity.

Meetings will continue to convene every night in the week except Monday and Thursday, and a free bus makes a circuitous route in Santa Ana for the benefit of those who have no other means of transport to the tabernacle. The route of the bus can be obtained by calling Santa Ana 5670.

"MAN IN IRON LUNG" ARRIVES

The epic journey from Peiping, China to Chicago by Frederick B. Snite, Jr., infantile paralysis victim confined to an artificial respirator, found the youth smiling throughout, and he's shown being moved from the steamer President Coolidge at San Francisco to the special car to take him to Chicago. Dr. Claude Forkner, the youth's physician for two years, is shown in the foreground, adjusting the mirror by which his patient sees around him. Second behind Forkner is Snite's sister, and behind her, some of the Chinese nurses who accompanied him.

SALVE SAVES SITUATION AS DECKERT'S SKIN BLISTERS

With five aerial nurses on duty yesterday at the Aviation Show, held under auspices of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, at Eddie Martin's airport, there was but one call for first aid.

The nurses, nattily clad in blue uniforms, had volunteered to operate a first aid station at the airport, as they have done at every major aviation show and air race since formation of the organization. The five nurses, under direction of Miss Laurette Schimmoller, president and founder of the group, and Dr. P. B. Gillespie, were stationed with an ambulance from the Orange County Ambulance Service, at the west end of the field.

He Remembers
The only call made for their professional services came from the reviewing stand, where Dale Deckert, general chairman in charge of the show, and "Happy" Wentz, in charge of the Standard Oil public address system, were on duty.

Deckert had forgotten that there was a bright sun blazing down on the field. He suddenly realized that Old Sol was on the job when his face and neck started to blister and a hurry call for first aid was sent out. Miss Laura Cheshire from the nursing corps responded and applied soothing lotions to Deckert's blistering face and neck.

Nurses on duty at the airport were: Miss Schimmoller, and the Misses Evelyn Daniels, Margaret Derenia, Marie Wallace and Laura Cheshire.

CALLING all DOGS

By Albert Payson Terhune

A NEW SLANT ON CANINE FASHIONS

Months ago, I spoke to you about the amazing shifts in canine fashions. Now comes further testimony:

The Westminster (Madison Square Garden) dogshow in New York is America's chief canine exhibition. Its catalog is a certain indication of up-to-date fashions in dogs. Let's look at a few of the figures in the Westminster catalog for 1937:

Of the 3,144 dogs, what breed was most popular? The cocker spaniel. There were 205 cockers, an increase of 63 above 1936. In 1936, the Scottish terrier was second favorite in numbers, with an entry of 143. He dropped back to third place in 1937, with 134 entries. The Boston terrier, on the other hand which had slumped, started a comeback, with 124 entries as against 96 last year. This put them in front of wire-haired terriers and Great Danes and English setters, all of which had begun ahead of the Bostons in 1936. Through breed after breed went the queer changes of position.

What does it all go to prove? Only that fashions in dogs are as subject to change as are fashions in dress. Why do these shifts happen? Nobody knows. Nobody can forecast them. I don't understand why fanciers should discard some breed they have cherished and turn to another. But then there are MANY things about dogs and their breeds that I don't understand. Nor does anyone else.

Florida's mild climate is due to the Gulf Stream, the trade winds blowing from the Atlantic by day and the Gulf of Mexico by night, and to evaporation from the innumerable inland lakes.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 2 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pain, lumbago, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of urinary tubes flush out poisons waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

SOVIET FLIERS RECEIVE PRAISE

MOSCOW, June 21 — (UP) — Russian newspapers today said thousands of extra copies packed with news of the flight of three Soviet airmen to the United States.

Workers in factories here and throughout Russia adopted resolutions congratulating the fliers, and Alexi Stakanov, noted for his methods of intensifying individual enterprise industry, hailed the flight as a triumph which only a Soviet nation could accomplish.

"While Fascist airplanes are destroying Spanish towns," he said, "ours are conquering the North Pole, laying a new air route, conquering the summit of science. Only the people of a Soviet country can solve such problems."

LONDON, June 21.—(UP)—Sir Hubert Wilkins, Arctic explorer, said today that the Soviet flight to the United States "demonstrates the practicability of polar air routes."

South routes, he said, have two great advantages over other ocean routes — better weather and ice to land on if the necessity arises. "The distance between suitable landing planes along the polar routes is not very great," he said, "and is well within the capacity of modern, highly efficient engines."

BOSTON, June 21.—(UP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, only man to fly over both north and south poles, today described the successful Moscow-to-Vancouver flight by three Russian fliers as "unsurpassed in the history of aviation."

"It is splendid evidence of the wonderful progress that Russia has made in aviation material and in the training of aviation personnel," he said. "I send my congratulations and warm regards to all concerned."

LINOTYPE OPERATOR DIES IN S. B. HOTEL

Charles Augustus Tummore, 58-year-old linotype operator employed by the Long Beach Press-Telegram, was found dead at 8:30 p. m. yesterday in his room in Seal Hotel, Seal Beach. Tummore, a resident of Long Beach, had been employed as a linotype operator for the past 28 years. Coroner Earl Abbey was investigating today but no inquest will be held.

According to police who investigated the case, Tummore had retired to his hotel room at approximately 5 a. m. yesterday. Tummore's body was found by an hotel employee, who called officers. A physician expressed the opinion that Tummore had been dead approximately 10 hours when found and had been the victim of a heart attack.

STRIKE SYMBOL—VIGILANTE

Symbolically silhouetted against a seven-state background of steel strike strife stands the husky, helmeted figure of the vigilante, his face set in harsh lines, his poised club ready to swing, his eyes ever on the lookout for trouble. Like this one at Johnstown, Pa., with his six-plus feet of work-hardened muscle, he's a rough, tough customer in a battle.

Author of Murder Book Arrested On Extortion Charge

NEW YORK, June 21.—(UP)—Danny Ahern, 35, author of "How To Commit a Murder and Get Away With It," was in the line-up today because, police said, his knowledge of extortion was not so comprehensive.

A police character for the past 18 years, Ahern was charged with threatening to kill Harry Lehrer unless Mrs. Mae Lehrer paid $228 on a gambling debt owed by her husband.

Ahern admitted telephoning Mrs. Lehrer but denied making threats. A few years ago Ahern's book was successful enough to win him a writing job in Hollywood at $850 a week. He quit when he was refused a raise to $1200 a week because, he said, "I was tired of working for coffee and cake money."

PROWLER LOSES BIKE

A prowler near the orange grove of Mrs. C. F. Hohlenderger, 420 East Edinger, early yesterday, outran Officer J. W. Foster and escaped in the darkness, but abandoned the bicycle he had used in going to the place, reports show. Called to the place, Officers Foster and Clyde Flower began an investigation; the prowler made a noise and Foster gave chase. The show room and carburetor was impounded at police headquarters. Foster hopes the prowler will come to get it.

The average year-round centigrade temperature at the North Pole is 23.7 degrees below zero.

High Priests of Smokis in Annual Snake Dances

High priests of the Smoki people swirled into the plaza at Prescott, Ariz., recently to show 5000 spectators the strange rituals of their annual ceremonies. Their bodies vividly painted and grotesquely costumed, white men who comprise the Smoki Clan gave a vivid and authentic interpretation of Indian dances. The snake dance, shown above, was most spectacular.

SHIP OF MATRIMONY GROUNDS IN HEAVY SEA; BRIDE JAILED

There may be "red sails in the sunset" on a calm and glistening sea, in the future, but there was trouble on a stormy "sea of matrimony" for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hendrix, newlyweds, of Los Angeles, Saturday evening, according to city police.

Following a wedding ceremony here, Officers W. E. B. Sherwood and George Boyd were called to an ice house at 17th and Main, where it was reported the couple was having an argument. Mrs. Helen Racketts, bridesmaid, Los Angeles, was to take the couple to a Los Angeles honeymoon cottage but Mrs. Hendrix said "no." She didn't want to ride with her new husband, the officers were informed. When she got into a second car, the driver and Hendrix continued the argument.

The wedding party was invited to "iron things out" at police station. The "sea of matrimony" apparently became smooth as Mrs. Hendrix agreed to ride along with Mrs. Racketts and Hendrix.

But 21-2 hours later, Capt. R. S. Elliott and Officer J. B. Stephenson, found Mrs. Hendrix, 32, at Fourth and Sycamore streets, they reported. They arrested her on a charge of intoxication. Others of the wedding party were not present.

Scores of Santa Ana boys and girls today started the general "plunge" into the local Y. M. C. A. summer schedule when they reported early to take part in the "Learn to Swim" campaign, one of the many features of the season's program.

Announcement of the entire schedule was made by Ralph C. Smedley, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., this morning.

Six-Week Event

Lessons for boys began at 9 o'clock and those for girls at 10:30. They will continue on that schedule for the next six weeks on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings.

This afternoon the boys enjoyed the first of their "recreational" afternoons. Each Monday and Thursday afternoon the pool is reserved for boys from 2 to 4 o'clock. Girls have the same opportunity on Tuesday and Friday afternoons.

Memory Course Tonight

At 7:30 p. m. today the first of two lessons in memory training will be given. Secretary R. C. Smedley reports that numerous men and women have indicated their interest in this class. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Tomorrow evening there is to be a meeting of all young men interested in forming a summertime club for practice in speech. Committees from the two Toastmasters' clubs will coach and supervise the work, and any young man who desires to get the training in speech is invited. The meeting is set for 7:30.

Navigation Class

Wednesday evening, the summer class in navigation will "set sail," with Hubert Kidder as the skipper. Kidder promises to provide instruction helpful to anyone who is interested in sailing or motor-boating. The class, starting at 7:30, is open to all, without charge.

Friday evening, the county-wide ping pong tournament will be played off. With some of the best players in the county entered, and with a fine list of desirable prizes for the winners, much fast play is assured. The play will be held in the Y gymnasium, beginning at 8:20 and continuing until the winners are determined. Thursday of this week is the dead-line for entries.

CULT LEADER MAY BE HUNT WITNESS

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—(UP)

A subpoena for Father Divine was considered today by the defense of John W. Hunt, round white follower of the Harlem Negro cultist, whose Mann act trial opens tomorrow.

Hugh E. MacBeth, Hunt's attorney, said he "may find it necessary" to call Divine if the government injects a religious element into the case.

Delight Jewett, 17-year-old Denver girl, charges Hunt lured her here and attacked her in his Beverly Hills cult quarters on assurances she was to become the "Virgin Mary" of his new cult "Bethlehem."

Co-defendants are Howard B. Smith, 66, retired engineer, Mrs. Elizabeth Peters and Mrs. Agnes Gardner, who accompanied Hunt and the girl on the motor journey from Denver.

FOUR KILLED IN MICHIGAN STORM

DETROIT, June 21.—(UP)—A virtual cloudburst, driven by a wind of cyclonic proportions and accompanied by a heavy lightning, killed at least four persons in southern Michigan Sunday and resulted in thousands of dollars in damage.

Those killed were: Wallace J. Smith, 47, Detroit; Emmett J. Mueller, 41, Detroit; Fred Valentine, Summeret Center; Steve O'Rourke, 33, Brownston township, Wayne county.

Smith and Mueller were killed by lightning while trying to latch the doors of a barn near North Branch where they had sought refuge with their families.

his automobile and tore it from the chassis. Ted Francis, driver of the car, was knocked unconscious.

O'Rourke stepped from his automobile to remove fallen electric wires along Southfield road, near Detroit, and was electrocuted.

RING TAKEN FROM BODY IDENTIFIED
LOS ANGELES, June 21.—(UP)—Harold Jones, president of an optical company with stores in Los Angeles, Hollywood and Pasadena, today identified his wedding ring taken from the body of a woman found under a flat building in the fashionable Wilshire district yesterday.

Fred E. Manning, of Burbank, also identified the white gold band, inscribed "Hal to Alice, August 1, 1919," as belonging to his sister, Mrs. Alice Jones.

Neither of the men who identified the ring viewed the badly decomposed body, which was located yesterday by some boys hunting for a lost baseball under the building.

Both, however, also identified articles of clothing taken from the body. Jones told police that his wife, suffering from a mental ailment, disappeared from his home October 27 last and was found three days later. He then placed her in a rest home, from which she disappeared again December 14.

A slight depression in one cheek indicated, according to police possibility of a bullet wound, but examination of the body, owing to its condition, was difficult.

TREASURERS EAGER TO GET U. S. RULE
County and city treasurers of the state were awaiting the result of an errand to Washington, where Secretary Graves, of Gov. Merriam's office, has gone in an effort to postpone the new federal law limiting interest paid on public funds by national banks.

The county treasurer's convention at Lake Arrowhead was told that, while the state legislature has enacted a law permitting county and city treasurers to conform with the new federal regulations, it is hoped to defer operation of the federal law two years, according to T. E. Stephenson, county treasurer.

The federal law eliminates interest on checking accounts and limits the interest on term deposits to a rate fixed by the federal reserve bank.

The old state law, which conflicted with the new regulations, required treasurers to collect a minimum of one percent interest on term deposits and one-half percent on checking accounts.

GRASS FIRES KEEP FIREMEN ON RUN
Grass fires were responsible for three of four alarms which sent firemen into action during the week end.

Saturday noon, a grass fire got away from city workers who were burning off vacant, weed-ridden lots, the firemen working an hour before bringing the fire under control. The fire was located at 2139 South Main. A similar fire got away from workers along the Southern Pacific right of way, Washington and Poinsettia streets, Saturday afternoon, and the same afternoon, a neglected trash fire at 1019 Cypress, set fire to nearby grass. Last evening at the home of Howard Shugart, 509 Orange avenue, spontaneous combustion among some bags in a garage, caused $50 damage to the garage.

AIR SHOW ONE OF BEST, SAYS U. S. INSPECTOR

In spite of the fact that one airplane nosed over and bent a propeller during the air show staged yesterday at the Eddie Martin Airport, compliments for the safe conduct of the show were sent to Washington, D. C., by Chief Inspector Joseph Marriott of the Department of Air Commerce. The near-accident happened at the west end of the field when a pilot started to turn over the propeller of his ship preparatory to starting, with no one in the cockpit. The throttle was half opened and when the motor caught hold the ship nosed over. According to officials of the show the mishap would have been serious had not the airplane's wheels been blocked.

Marriott told Dale Deckert, general chairman of the show, which was sponsored by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, that in his report to Washington he would include the advice that the Santa Ana show was one of the best conducted exhibitions to be staged in Southern California. He said that more than usual care in the directing of aerial traffic and handling of airplanes was displayed.

SHAW FUNERAL RITES ARE HELD

Private funeral rites were held at 2 p. m. today for Linn Shaw, pioneer Santa Ana newspaperman and businessman, who died Saturday at his home here.

The Rev. Harry E. Owings, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated at the rites which were held in the Brown and Wagner chapel. Interment followed in Santa Ana cemetery.

Linn Shaw, a native of Iowa, came to Santa Ana in 1886 and, shortly after his arrival, went to work for the Pacific Weekly Blade. Later he was city editor of the Daily Blade and, still later, was a part owner of the Orange County Herald.

In 1902 he was appointed postmaster of Santa Ana and served in that capacity until 1912.

In 1917 Shaw and Roy Russell formed a business partnership for the handling of real estate in Santa Ana and through operations of that firm Shaw was responsible for much of the development of the city. At the time of his death he was a director of the Santa Ana Development Company, operators of the Grand Central Market.

SEATTLE, June 21.—(UP)—With a fire under control in her hold, the S. S. Bujo Maru, of Osaka, Japan, made for Port Townsend, flames were virtually smothered with steam.

The ship sailed back from Grays Harbor, Wash., Saturday night for Japan but turned back when fire broke out in the No. 2 hold.

The coast guard cutter Redwing, at Port Angeles, offered assistance but the Bujo Maru radioed: "Condition good; no necessity of coast guard help; think fire under control."

Yamashita Shipping company, which chartered the vessel, said the fire started yesterday afternoon in rubber and pulp but that the Wash. today.

COUNTY SALARY HOPES TAKE "NOSE-DIVE"

TAX EXPERTS TO AID CHECK ON SALARY INQUIRY

BY GEORGE HART

Courthouse officials and employees feel that, with living costs up in the stratosphere, they are entitled to at least partial restoration of the 15-per cent cut they voluntarily took several years ago. And, comparing the general wage level here with that in other counties, there seems no doubt that they are right.

But their hopes of getting a raise have looped clear into the cellar since they learned that John Mitchell, member of the snoopervisory committee that sent out salary questionnaires to all hands, has employed two experts from the California Taxpayers Association to help him chart the questionnaires and prepare a study of the situation.

Painfully Aware

The help is too painfully aware that the chief business of the California Taxpayers Association always has been to beat down expenses. The fact that Orange county's public payroll already has been beaten down below that of the other counties may not save them, they fear.

An illustration of prevailing pay in this and neighboring counties was provided not long ago by a meeting of county recorders of the southern counties, held in Santa Ana. When the recorders got to comparing salary notes, J. Fred Sidebottom, of Orange county, discovered that he had the lowest wage scale of them all. For example, the rate of four cents per folio paid copyists in his department was all the way from 25 to 75 per cent below the rate to be paid this year in the other counties.

"What, A Bird-Dog?"

Incidentally, it is rumored that Snoopervisory Mitchell feels that his co-snooper, N. E. West, has run out on him and left the questionnaires and the salary problem in Mitchell's lap. West went East last week on a vacation jaunt for 20 days.

Snoopervisory West will not have to snoop out questionnaires to the various courthouse workers to get his future inside information. If plans he is said to have evolved are placed in operation.

West, it is understood, recently confided to a group of Epic friends at Laguna Beach that he plans to get a certain deputy constable appointed to some clerical job at the courthouse. The idea would be to make a bird-dog out of this clerk.

Strikers Dumped This Truck, Unaware of Truce

Truck drivers at Omaha struck for 12 days without violence and then, an hour after a truce had been signed without their knowledge, a crowd of them followed one driver across the river into Council Bluffs, Ia., beat him up and overturned his truck. A photographer who also had followed, caught this graphic picture as the big truck went over on its side and the strikers fled from approaching police.

Police News

George H. Law of Santa Ana admitted today he violated Santa Ana's speed law May 25 when he drove 40 miles per hour in the 25-mile zone, First street at Shelton. Saturday, Law was one of five speeders who pleaded guilty before City Judge J. G. Mitchell and were assessed fines. Law paid $6; Wilma J. Potter, Santa Ana, paid $6 for speeding; Kathleen Riggs, Sacramento, $8 speeding, and Francis Brennan, Pomona, $8.

Four men, arrested Friday afternoon at Fourth and Poinsettia streets, all charged with vagrancy—drinking too steadily, were hauled into city court Saturday and sentenced to county jail terms. Joe Roberts, 53, Irvine ranch, and Bert Powers, 37, South Main, Santa Ana, were jailed for 60 days each. Frank Madden, 30, transient, got 30 days and Roy Coyle, 37, 715 East Chestnut, Santa Ana, 30 days, suspended upon condition Coyle stop the use of liquor.

Local police ticketed five speeders during the week end, records show. Other motorists were ticketed as follows: two, having no license, and three, having no insurance to hunt the hidden "dirt" for West, so it is said at the courthouse.

This suggestion is likely to offend our good friend, Janitor Dan Patrick, who is really serious about keeping the premises clean. But it will merely amuse the rest of the courthouse.

Ex-Hoover Aide Called By Death

WEST CHESTER, Pa., June 21.—(UP)—Dr. Clyde Lyndon King, 58, professor of political economy at the Wharton School of Finance, University of Pennsylvania, former state secretary of revenue and former political adviser to the German government, died from a heart attack at his home today after a brief illness.

Dr. King, who also served as adviser to Gov. George H. Earle on fiscal matters, was stricken Saturday.

Internationally known as an authority on governmental fiscal matters and political science, Dr. King aided Herbert Hoover during the World war as a member of the food administration. He also acted as milk price arbitrator in nearly every urban center in the United States.

County Builders Enjoy Outing At Irvine Park

More than 300 guests and members of the Orange County Builders' Exchange were present at the annual picnic at Irvine Park Saturday. It was a record crowd.

A varied and entertaining program, which included the awarding of approximately 50 prizes, was arranged by Fred Sanford, I. W. MacFarland, Walter Sorenson, and Charles H. Lawrence were his assistants. Judge of the sport events were George R. Wells and George Thoman.

The Santa Ana Lumber Company won first prize for the firm having the largest number present, including employees and their families, but not including guests. Allison Honor was first in the competition for the largest family present.

Probably the most popular member of the picnic was George W. Young, president of the Exchange, who was in charge of the steak broiling. He was ably assisted by the chairman of the program committee, A. H. Stoval. The attendance committee was Cal Gilbert, C. B. Cook, Howard Curran, Jasper Farney, and V. O. Kiser. The finances and tickets were handled by G. W. Bassett, secretary and manager of the Exchange.

URGE PENSION FOR TOWNSEND

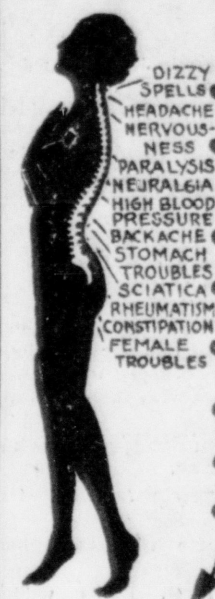

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(UP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, who has battled for years to obtain legislation giving every aged person a pension of $200 a month, may soon be paid this pension himself by his rebellious former supporters.

Rep. Charles N. Crosby, D. Pa., today revealed that the Townsend legislative steering committee of 40 members of the house met secretly last week to discuss the recent blow-up among Dr. Townsend's lieutenants in Chicago as a result of his attacks on the president's court reform measures.

Besides deciding to organize the General Welfare federation to push for enactment of the pension plan, and thus eliminate the Townsend name, the committee recommended that Dr. Townsend and his wife each be retired on a $200 monthly pension as being the original sponsor of the old age pension movement.

Crosby said that J. W. Brinton, former general manager, and Gilmore Young, former national secretary and treasurer of Dr. Townsend's group, told the steering committee of the organization's "desperate financial condition." Receipts at headquarters dropped from approximately $5000 a day to less than $300.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CORAL CRANDALL, heroine and senior at Elton College.
DAVID ARMSTRONG, Elton chemistry professor and Coral's husband.
DONNA ALLEN, Coral's sorority roommate.
ROY MARQUIS, Coral's one-time fiance.

Yesterday, Coral discovers the secret formula hidden in Donna's room. When Coral threatens to inform college authorities, Donna counters with the same threat, placing the theft on Coral's shoulders.

CHAPTER XI

AS Coral and David walked rapidly up the cement sidewalk leading to the veranda of Professor Maxwell's house, they were silent. Coral had told David of her interview with Donna, and both their minds were furiously occupied with the situation in which they found themselves. The door opened then, and Coral was surprised to see not Professor Maxwell or his maid, Betty, waiting to receive them, but Professor Bendorff. He smiled at them politely, but his eyes, beneath their shaggy black brows were hard and forbidding. "Good evening. We've been expecting you. Won't you come in?" As they followed him into the house, he continued, "I was spending the evening with Maxwell, and when Miss Allen called we decided that I might as well stay, since what you have to tell concerns me as well as Professor Maxwell. I feel sure you wouldn't mind."

Coral and David looked at each other in perplexity. They were on the point of questioning Bendorff further about Donna's telephone call when Professor Maxwell entered the room. "Good evening," he said genially. "I'm glad to see both of you, and doubly glad that we're going to be able to straighten out this disagreeable matter."

"Professor Maxwell," Coral said finally, "Professor Bendorff has told us that Donna called you. I feel it is only fair to us that we be told what she said, since we came here to absolve ourselves from suspicion in this theft and to tell you of the part which she played in it."

Maxwell looked at her kindly and was about to speak, but he was stopped by the suave voice of Bendorff. "We were led to believe, by Miss Allen, that you would say precisely what you have just told us. She also warned us not to believe anything you said concerning her part in the theft of the process. We were given to understand that she had discovered the slip of paper on which the process was written in your dictionary, that you had found it out and were on your way here to tell us that you and not she, had found it, in her dictionary, not yours. Does that answer your question?"

CORAL was too stupefied to reply. Donna was going through with her scheme then. And it looked as though she had been right, that her story would be accepted, while the truth which she and David knew, would be cast aside as a pack of lies.

David, however, was not put off so easily. He sprang to his feet and said furiously, "The girl is lying. We can prove it!"

"How?" asked Bendorff, his tone unbelieving, almost insulting. "I'll tell you how," David cried. "Coral, show them the sheet of paper which you found in Donna's dictionary tonight. If they think Donna found it among your belongings, how do they account for the fact that you have it here in your handbag?"

Wordlessly, Coral opened her handbag and produced the folded square of blue laboratory paper upon which the details of the process were written.

"Yes, Coral, that sounds very logical to me," said Professor Maxwell slowly. "As Professor Bendorff knows, I am more than anxious to hear all of the story which you and David have to tell, and until you are definitely proven guilty . . . which I think is unlikely . . . I consider both of you innocent."

CORAL and David looked at each other, their eyes alight with hope. David stepped to her side. "Thank you, Professor Maxwell. Depend upon it, your faith in us is justified." He turned to Bendorff. "Doesn't the point which we have just made seem logical to you, sir?"

Bendorff smiled suavely. "I am afraid that it will take more than that to convince me of Miss Crandall's innocence and your own lack of participation in this distressing affair. Being less credulous than Professor Maxwell, it occurs to me that it would have been quite possible for Miss Crandall to have taken the paper away from Miss Allen by force, bring it to us, and thus substantiate her story that Miss Allen and not herself or you is the guilty person."

"That's exactly what happened!" They turned to see Donna standing in the doorway, her eyes blazing, her face flushed.

Behind her stood President Norton. He took Donna by the arm and ushered her into the library.

"Sit down, Miss Allen, there is no need to get overexcited or to say things for which you may be sorry later." He turned to the two older professors. "I came in answer to your telephone message, and met Miss Allen coming up the walk. We rang the bell, but no one answered, so we took the liberty of entering unannounced." He smiled at Coral and David. "I'm very much interested in hearing what you have to say. I think, if Miss Allen has no objection, I should like to hear your story first. Miss Crandall, Professor Armstrong, tell us your side of the affair."

CORAL tried to speak, but somehow the words would not come. She looked appealingly toward David, then toward Professor Maxwell.

At last she found the words. Once begun, all fear left her and she told her story clearly, simply, directly. David, proudly watching her, felt it would be impossible for anyone to doubt the truth of her statement. When she had finished, after recounting the birth of her suspicions, plus what had happened at the sorority house early in the evening even to the threats made by Donna, there was a long silence. At last President Norton said, "Well, Miss Allen, you have heard Miss Crandall's story and Mr. Marquis. What have you to say?"

Donna looked up sullenly. "What Coral calls my threats are not threats, but the truth. She has also omitted to mention what I consider an important point, proving why she stole the process, why Professor Armstrong helped her and why they needed the money which could be gained by selling it." She sat up straight in her chair. "Those two have been secretly married since early in March!" She looked derisively at Coral and David. "Let's see if you can lie out of that!" And from her pocket she pulled a stiff, white oblong, which she handed to President Norton. "I borrowed the license to show you, sir."

There was a long pause. Even Professor Maxwell looked grave. At last he spoke. "I wish you had told us this before, Coral. It puts a very different light on matters. You see, this establishes your motive for the theft!"

George Wilson of Grid Fame In Semi Against Leo Numa

Two of the foremost heavyweights on the Pacific Coast—Dr. Len Hall and Hans Steinke, German man crusher, meeting for the right to oppose either Vincent Lopez or Daniel Boone Savage in the same ring next week, battle it out tonight in the three-fall wrestling months. Something always turned up to keep Herr Steinke from winning.

It may be that Dr. Hall, rated one of the game's most cagey and scientific grapplers, has too much on the ball for Steinke, despite the latter's strength, and super hold, the "boomerang." Hall, except for defeats by Champion Detton and Lopez, is undefeated on the coast. Steinke is about in the same boat, except that he has Dr. Hall also sticking in his hair.

They uncover the Scarlet Mixer X in the special event tonight and send George Wilson, the former All-American football star from Washington, out to meet Leo Numa in the semi-final.

The Scarlet Mixer X came popping into the picture last week. An unknown, about whom fairy tales are being written, may be former champion, a coming champion or just a plain palooka. Tonight will tell the tale somewhat. Mysterious Mister Scarlet meets Hans Schultz, rough German heavy, who ought to prove a fair test.

Light Tackle Offsets Bass' Sluggishness On Warm Days

BY JIMMY DONAHUE
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

Expert fishermen, in advising use of lighter lures in plug casting for bass, have partially solved the problem of fooling sluggish bronze backs in hot weather.

It has been this observer's experience, in progressing from the lowly worm and minnow, through the trolling rig, plug casting, and finally to the fly rod with bass bugs and flies, that his success has increased summer after summer as his tackle became lighter.

While it's true that game fish attack almost any shape of plug or spinner, whether it resembles something to eat or not, it also is a fact that they grow lazy during the heat of summer, lie themselves into deep spring holes, and thumb holidays we dropped in on Jack Redhead, sage of the Au Sable, near Grayling.

That authority on matters piscatorial echoed our sentiments concerning the advantage of lighter lures in farm weather, and, while he uses a fly rod exclusively, not even stooping to bass bugs, but sticking to small flies when angling for bass, advanced the theory that quarter-ounce plugs are the ticket for hot weather bass.

Casting such light lures with any degree of accuracy with the ordinary bait-casting outfit is next to impossible. But with a six-foot, whippy casting rod, a free-running reel, and an eight-pound test line, an ordinary fisherman can whip out their noses at most anything dragged by.

Even during the morning and evening feeding periods they are reluctant to grab artificials, and particularly so the larger lures running from a half ounce to an ounce.

MAKE BASS LEERY

In cooler weather the bass is a belligerent cuss, and the splash of a five-eighths-ounce plug doesn't scare him. No, sir! He's out scouting for that piece of hardware, ready to repel all invaders.

But the splash of heavy plugs in hot weather makes a shrinking violet out of the fellow, and he scurries for cover when such offerings come his way.

A trip to Lake Margarethe, near Grayling, Mich., last year drove home that idea in a big way. Bass on that lake and other nearby bodies wouldn't have anything to do with big plugs, but they did fall for bass bugs on the fly rod at evenings.

Over the recent Decoration day

SLOW RETRIEVE HELPS

Any of the popular plugs in this miniature size, providing they resemble FOOD, are more productive this time of the year.

You don't want to retrieve your lures too fast in warm weather. A lanky bass has to be mighty hungry to strike a lure that buzzes past his gills at express speed. Just reel fast enough to give the lure the action intended for it, and pause in the retrieve now and then.

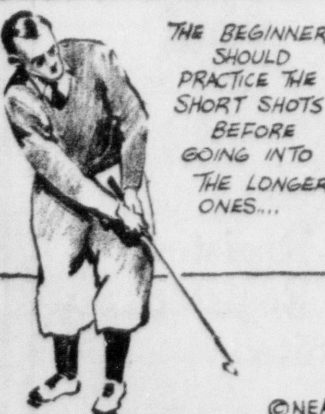

To employ light tackle and lures in summer not only is going to get you more bass, but it is going to offer you more sport. A two-pound bass taken on a five-foot rod, 15-pound test line, and a five-eighths-ounce plug is going to play out a lot quicker than he will on a whip-poor-six-foot cane or steel rod, a fine line, and a small plug.

The lighter tackle makes up for the sluggishness of bass in hot weather.

BALBOANS ENTERTAIN THRONG SATURDAY

PARADE, OTHER EVENTS MARK SEA WALL FETE

BALBOA ISLAND, June 21.—Balboa island residents Saturday were hosts at a program that drew a record-breaking crowd to the community, when they staged a variety fiesta and parade in commemoration of the recent completion of a $200,000 sea wall around the island.

Included in the celebration was the presentation of keys to the tide gates by Mayor Harry H. Williamson to Mrs. Howard W. Seager in behalf of her husband, Dr. Seager, prime mover in the project to secure the improvement who was called away from the city for the day.

Colorful Parade

J. D. Watkins, assistant manager of the program, was in charge of the day's activities. Immediately following the dedication ceremony presided over by Mayor Williamson, short talks were made by City Engineer R. L. Patterson, Assistant City Engineer John Siegel, Theodore Robins, president of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce; Arthur Adamson, FWA official; Irving George Gordon, city councilman, and Sam Meyers, publisher.

Next of the afternoon activities was the grand parade around the island on the seawall promenade under the direction of Douglas Bronston. The parade and tour of the island included a unit, "Children with Pets," "Tummy Dress Exhibitions," and other features. Sports for the afternoon were swimming events and a water base ball game between persons on the island and a team of players from the mainland. The evening was featured by dancing. The WPA band and the WPA orchestra furnished music for the entire program.

Prizes Awarded

Preceding the dancing, which was held on the streets, winners in the parade units and in the sports were announced by Judge Grainger Hyer, chairman of the judging committee. Winners in the parade units were, children with pets, in the order named, Marion Volmer, Nancy Holman, Constance Shook and Delores Eldred; "White Pirates," Betty Albright, Barbara Watson, Marie Nordstrom, Dick Durkee; comics, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Gresh, E. J. Allen, Philip Whitmer and Bert Rudden; and fancy dress, Buddy Edgar, Jimmy Hamilton, Jean Spears and the Newton sisters.

The water baseball teams tied with a score of 3 to 3, it was stated. In the swimming race for boys under six years, John White was the winner; for girls under six years, Constance Shook, first and Shirley Ann Mitchell, second; boys under nine years, Warren Burns, first; Jimmy Douglas, second and Don Rogers, third; and for girls under nine years, Roberta Johnson, first; Joan Haffenbach, second, and Joan Beardsley third.

Other Winners

In the final heat for boys over 12 years, Jimmy Brooks won first, Charles Hurd, second; Clinton Moore, third, and Dick Durkee, fourth, while in the girls' event for the same age, Donna Stanley and Pat Murphy tied for first place and Caroline Haffenbach and Claire Craig tied for second honors. In the finals for boys 15 years and under, Fred Monroe won first, Jimmy Keeler, second, and Robert Short, third, while in the girls' race Helen Ann Grundy was first, Gene Derkey, second, and Carol Markell, third. The 18-year-old boys finished, Emery Kelley, first; Pit Waldron, second; Bill Gachet, third, and Basil Williams, fourth.

The group in charge of arrangements was Dr. Seager, J. D. Watkins, Conrad Shook, J. M. Longfield, Douglas Bronston, Doris M. McFarland, Kenneth Baum, Earl W. Stanley, A. J. Price, Anton Hershey, Ralph Sprague and Grainger Hyer.

At White House It Was Different

Her two-week stay at the White House ended, dancer Roberta Jones (it's Jonay on theater billings), returns to more prosaic quarters. While Mrs. Roosevelt's guest, the White House car took her to work daily at the Washington hotel where she was dancing, and the White House staff looked after her every want. It appears above that she is having to shift for herself during a visit to New York.

It Seems To Me

HEYWOOD BROWN

I quite agree with those who say that the majority report of the Senate Judiciary Committee is an historic document. Its complete political importance will have to be determined by scholars with more perspective than the immediate moment affords. But I doubt that these later evaluators will follow such editors as want to hark all the way back to Patrick Henry. I believe that they will find a neater analogy in a far more recent Senatorial upheaval. I cite in support of my contention the following illuminating paragraph from the scholarly writings of Arthur Krook, of the New York Times:—

A Gun is Fired

This quotation is drawn from an article of Mr. Krook's entitled "Courts Bill Report First Gun in 1940 Battle." I think Arthur Krook does not go quite far enough. He speaks of those Democratic Senators who are opposed to "the later extensions of the New Deal." If the march back does occur it will not pause, nor will its leaders desire it to pause, in the domain of the early days of the New Deal. These men, if they sense power, will not even be content to compromise by restoring the economic policies of Herbert Hoover. Let the Democratic reactionaries taste meat and they will raise the logical slogan for their movement, and it will be, "Back to Warren Gamaliel Harding!"

It seems to me that the New York Herald Tribune is quite accurate in speaking of the Judiciary Committee report and stating editorially, "That indictment touches the good faith of every administration policy."

It is significant that within the week two Democratic Senators, Edward Burke and Rush Holt, shared a platform with Miss Catherine Curtis, of the Women Investors of America. Miss Curtis will be remembered as one of the "how many days to save the republic" ladies in the London campaign. Rush Holt will be remembered, if at all, as the boy Senator who ran on a pro-labor platform and promptly renounced it the moment he was seated. Edward Burke, of Nebraska, is the gentleman who thinks that there is no need for hurry.

A Meeting of the Minds

The organization before which the two gentlemen and the lady spoke was the American Defense Society, with Messmore Kendall as toastmaster. There were even a letter from John Spargo and a speech by Raymond Moley.

"I haven't changed a bit," said Dr. Moley. He explained that he was for the "New Deal as it was"—in other words, the old, old, New Deal. Speaking of later phases, he said, "If this is part of the New Deal, then I am Dr. Townsend."

I think if Professor Moley had nominated himself not as Townsend but as Dr. Doornail, he would have found the same unanimous agreement, which was extended to him when he declared, "I haven't changed a bit."

To be sure, the question still remains, Can the Democratic group which wants a Harding find one within its ranks? That can easily be solved by putting a couple of dozen names in a hat and drawing lots.

TEST NEW PLANE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 21.—(UP)—After an overland flight made as an altitude test, a huge flying boat, which penetrated as far as mountain-locked Lake Tahoe, was to return to San Diego today. The boat, similar to those which the navy will start on a non-stop Panama flight today, is being tested prior to being sent to New Guinea on a scientific expedition for the American Museum of Natural History.

Townsend Topics

By W. F. Rockwell

(Editor's Note: The comment and opinions of W. F. Rockwell, as appearing in this column are not necessarily those of The Register.)

The mass meeting in Costa Mesa Saturday night was not an anti-Sheppard meeting. It was a pro-Townsend meeting, most emphatically loyal to Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder and leader of the movement bearing his name. It is becoming plainly evident that this latest disturbance is bringing into action the determination of his followers to overcome all opposition and obstacles.

District Manager J. H. Walsh told his hearers that "the worst is yet to come, the money power is determined to prevent the success of this movement, and are ready to spend millions to defeat us."

"The saying that 'every man has his price' does not apply to Dr. Townsend who is not for sale at any price."

"In spite of all obstacles, nothing, not even the gigantic money power, can prevent the Townsend plan from reaching final victory."

Mr. Walsh read a resolution made by the district board at their Saturday meeting in Riverside in which they pledged complete loyalty to the Townsend plan. Quite a number of people were gathered before the Costa Mesa meeting began, and we could see by the conversation in which all were earnestly engaged, that the thoughts expressed were such as would not be interesting for Mr. Sheppard to hear.

A vote of thanks should be given by the Nineteenth Congressional district to J. H. Walsh for his untiring and zealous performance of the arduous duties involved in the office of district manager since he was chosen for this work by the present board. We believe this is the feeling of those who know him.

The Anaheim Townsend mass meeting yesterday afternoon in the high school auditorium was attended by a large crowd of wide-awake Townsendites who were intensely interested in the program. If the whole nation is as much aroused as the people who were at this meeting, then Dr. Townsend is safely established in the plan and movement bearing his name, and will finally win over all opposition and obstacles.

Harry Riley was chairman of the meeting. Herbert F. Kenney led the singing followed by beautiful songs with piano accompaniment. Among those on the platform were the following members of the district board: S. L. Wingert, president, C. F. Alexander, secretary, H. F. Kenney, treasurer, W. R. Cogswell of San Bernardino and Mr. Proud of La Habra.

Dr. U. G. Littell, president of Santa Ana club No. 3, spoke words that should be in the minds and hearts of every Townsendite. He told of the life of Christ, how He was persecuted and finally crucified, but his followers did not repudiate Him. What would be thought of a person professing to be a true Christian and at the same time repudiate Christ?

Ted Felt endorsed Dr. Littell's views and added further good advice. W. R. Cogswell's talk was a masterpiece that brought heartfelt applause which his words merited. Mr. Cogswell proved his loyalty to Dr. Townsend by his intense earnestness and his strong words wisely spoken. His was one of the outstanding addresses. George D. Higgins, of Los Angeles, was another speaker whose talk was followed by an applause that showed hearty appreciation of a splendid message, and kept on clapping their hands long after he had left the platform. His talk, like that of Mr. Cogswell, stirred the very souls of his listeners with the finest feelings of true, real, genuine loyalty, for the right, and deep repugnance for all selfish, sordid impulses.

The only discordant note in the program started when C. F. Alexander mentioned the name of Sheppard. Immediately, boos were heard, followed by considerable discussion between different ones in the audience and those on the platform. It was finally decided that the best way is to wait till Mr. Sheppard arrives and explains his stand at the Chautauqua to be held at Fairmont Park, Riverside, July 3, 4 and 5.

Club No. 5 will serve ice cream, cake and coffee for 15 cents at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow, June 22, in the church at the corner of Richmond and Barton streets. A good speaker is engaged.

Club No. 6 will meet tomorrow night in the community house of the Christian church, on Sixth street, between Broadway and Birch streets.

Club No. 8 meets in the Lincoln school on North French street Tuesday, June 22, 7:30 p. m.

Club No. 9 will meet tomorrow night in the Holloway home 2027 Cypress avenue.

George D. Higgins will be the speaker at the Anaheim Townsend hall Tuesday night, 7:30 o'clock. His reputation as one of the most forceful speakers on the Townsend platform will bring a good crowd to hear him.

Club No. 2 will meet tonight in Townsend hall, 509 West Fourth street, 7:30 o'clock.

Club No. 12 meets on Tuesday nights in Santa Ana Gardens.

Strong Personal Touch Characterizes Younger Rockefeller's Varied Gifts

His Inherent Passion for Reconstruction and Building Is Not Confined To This Country Alone

Editor's Note: This is the second of six stories on John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the present and future status of the Rockefeller millions.

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Together the Rockefellers, father and son, have probably given away $750,000,000.

The present head of the clan has actively continued the work of his father in adding perhaps $175,000,000 to former benefactions which he continues to help administer.

In the gifts of the younger Rockefeller there is a strain of warmth, of personal interest, of imagination, and of cosmopolitanism that was not apparent in the vast "general purpose" contributions of the father.

The older man would never have thought, for instance, of the restoration of Colonial Williamsburg, Va., with which the son has produced an unique memorial of pre-Revolutionary times, buying and restoring an entire town at a cost of $15,000,000 for the pleasure and inspiration of 300,000 visitors a year.

The first-generation Rockefeller would probably never have been interested in putting $500,000 into rebuilding the Shakespeare Memorial Theater at Stratford after it burned down, or in contributing $1,500,000 toward rebuilding the Imperial University Library in Tokyo after an earthquake had damaged it. The benefactions of the younger Rockefeller reflect a mind that is at home in all the world and in every field.

Faith Never Shaken
The Rockefeller contributions to purely Baptist causes have virtually ceased. While the keen interest in religion and in religious causes remains, it is now expressed in interdenominational movements. Rockefeller, Jr., poured $2,000,000 into the abortive Inter-Church World Movement of 15 years ago, but his faith in such work was never shaken by its notable failure. The magnificent Riverside Church with its famous carillon, which dominates New York's upper Hudson river skyline, cost $1,500,000, but is entirely non-denominational in its services and its work. New York's Cathedral of St. John the Divine has received $500,000, the Colgate-Rochester Seminary $1,250,000, and the Yale Divinity School $1,000,000 from the Rockefeller coffers, and he is a large supporter of the Institute of Social and Religious Research.

Traveling in France, Rockefeller noted the shabby and generally run-down condition of the palaces at Versailles and Fontainebleau, saw the war-time ravages at Louvain and Rheims. The result was $3,000,000 for repairs at Versailles and Fontainebleau, restoration at Rheims, and $100,000 toward the rehabilitation of the Louvain Library.

Interested in Parks and Forestry
Observing the difficulties of poor students abroad led to establishment of a chain of International Student Houses in several countries to provide cheap and good living quarters for students in strange lands. In each there is a proportion of native students so that international understanding may be promoted. Nearly $11,000,000 has gone into this project.

Traveling more widely than his father ever did, Rockefeller has become interested in parks and forestry. It is due to his Save-the-Redwood League ($2,000,000) that many of the giant sequoias of the west still stand.

Acadia National Park is entirely a Rockefeller gift, the land having been acquired and improved for $4,000,000 and presented to the government.

Rockefeller loves the Palisades of the Hudson, and he bought $7,000,000 worth of land including the most slightly cliffs, thus preserving them as a scenic feature of New York.

Fort Tryon Park, historic scene of Washington's last stand in the retreat from Manhattan Island, has been bought at a cost of more than $6,000,000, and will not only become a park but the site of George Gray Barnard's collection of medieval sculpture, which will be housed in the new Cloisters Museum.

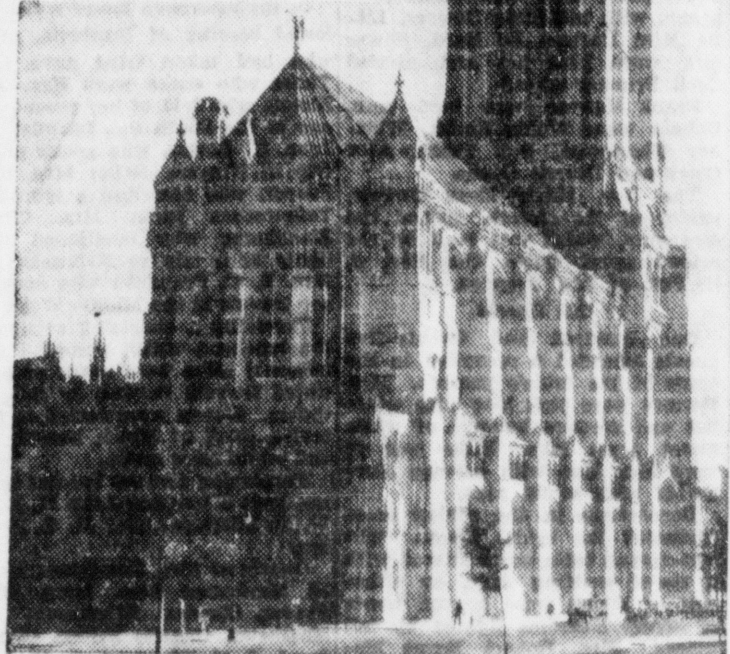

They Like His Taxes
The timberlands of Yosemite National Park have been preserved to the tune of $1,550,000, and Rockefeller has spent $1,725,000 on land in the Jackson Hole region of Wyoming in an effort to establish a national park in this scenic country.

Objections of local government units and taxpayers there, who like the $10,000 annual taxes which Rockefeller still pays, have temporarily halted this benefaction.

Half a million for the New York Botanical Gardens, a million for the New York Zoological Society, and $2,000,000 for New York's Metropolitan Museum are matched by the $700,000 given to the Library of Congress for its new union for the magnificent New York Public Library. When the League of Nations at Geneva needed a library, it was able to turn to Rockefeller for $2,000,000, half for a building, half for books.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

The magnificent $1,500,000 Riverside Church, whose tower and carillon dominate the Hudson River drive section of New York, is non-denominational, and receives members of all faiths, typifying the Rockefeller dream of a strong non-denominational united Protestant movement.

Most of this newer Rockefeller benefactions are now self-liquidating, in order to prevent the influence of the "dead hand" which often guides the use of donated money long after both benefactor and the original need have vanished. Such was the International Education Board, which has spent $21,000,000, income and principal, on various scientific and educational projects all over the world, and whose remaining projects are consolidated with the General Education Board.

A Passion for Construction
Foremost among college benefactions, after the University of Chicago, has been Hampton and Tuskegee Institutes, which have received $3,500,000 for the education of Negroes. Rockefeller's own alma mater, Brown University, with Princeton and Harvard, have shared Rockefeller's millions, and far-away Palestine can look on its Museum of Archeology at Jerusalem with $2,000,000 worth of thankfulness to the Rockefellers.

A passion for building and construction, notable in most of the recent Rockefeller projects, is also seen in several housing experiments totaling $13,500,000 in and around New York City.

But to list even the fields into which the present Rockefeller has sent his millions, let alone the individual projects, would be impossible. He is besieged at all times by hundreds of daily requests for Restoration and rebuilding of a complete pre-Revolutionary town, historic Williamsburg, Va., cost Rockefeller $15,000,000, and 300,000 Americans visit it yearly. Here Colonial-costumed men and women do a stately dance on the green before the Governor's Palace at Williamsburg.

NEW RULES FOR PEST CONTROL WORK REVEALED

Pest control operators using poisonous materials are required to notify the county agricultural commissioner 36 hours in advance of the time of application, according to rules and regulations issued by State Director of Agriculture A. A. Brook, effective June 15.

Notice must be given during the regular office hours of the commissioner and must include the name of the person and location of the property where the material is to be used, the approximate date and time of application and the kind and strength of material to be used. This record will be available to interested persons in the office of the commissioner.

To Protect Bees
The modification of the regulations is designed primarily for the protection of bee keepers and livestock owners who have frequently suffered losses on account of the application of poisonous materials in areas in which bees and livestock are feeding, said Dr. W. Tubbs, agricultural commissioner. Operators will be required also to use only such methods of application as will confine the material substantially to the premises where it is applied.

Faulty or careless application of materials or misrepresentation of the results to be obtained by the treatment are cause for revocation of the certificate of qualification which every operator is required to hold before he can engage in the business of controlling agricultural pests.

The new regulation, with these modifications, continues in force all former requirements with which operators have had to comply since the 1935 amendment gave the director of agriculture power to prescribe rules and regulations governing persons engaging for hire in the business of eradicating or controlling agricultural pests within this state.

Christian Science

"Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's; the earth also, with all that therein is." This verse from the book of Deuteronomy was the Golden Lesson in the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all Christian Science Churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon was the question, "Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?"

The Lesson-Sermon included the Bible verses from the Psalmist: "God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us; that thy way may be known upon the earth, thy saving health among all nations.... God shall bless us; and all the ends of the earth shall fear him."

A passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "Mind's control over the universe, including man, is no longer an open question, but is demonstrable science. Jesus illustrated the divine Principle and the power of immortal Mind by healing sickness and sin and destroying the foundations of death."

AVOCADO GROUP HONORS IRVINE MAN AT PARLEY

In recognition of his leadership and valuable services to the California avocado industry, the new 1937 directorate of the California Avocado Association elected Dean Palmer of Carlsbad as its 1937 president. The election took place last week in Los Angeles. The California Avocado Association is the avocado industry's non-marketing cultural society.

H. B. Griswold of La Habra Heights, was elected vice-president; Edna Barger and C. H. Young were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Murray Is Director
The new president is a San Diego county agricultural official and has carried on many avocado pest, disease, varietal and other experiments. The society was organized in 1915 and has been gathering and disseminating cultural information on avocados now for 22 years.

Directors of the society for 1937 are Dean Palmer, Carlsbad; A. W. Christie, Whittier; La Habra Heights; F. D. Halm, La Habra Heights; O. A. Murray, Irvine; H. B. Griswold, La Habra Heights; Carter Barrett, San Fernando; Albert Thille, Santa Paula; James G. France, San Diego; and Dr. J. Elliot Coit, Vista.

Valuable Collections

Historical records, data, pamphlets, histories, articles and other materials on the avocado, as collected by the society during its existence, have now been gathered into a most valuable industry history collection. The collection is to be loaned soon to the College of Subtropical Horticulture of the University of California at Los Angeles, for reference and permanent preservation. A few 1936 year-books, conceded to be the most informative yet published on avocado culture and marketing, are still available for a small number of interested growers. Secretary Barger said.

LESSON TAUGHT BY GYPSIES

LA GRANDE, Ore. (UP)—Because he distrusted banks, Andy Dougherty of Cove, Ore., has been in the habit of carrying his wealth about with him. His faith in the safety of that method has been badly shaken. A band of gypsies told his fortune, departed with $1,000 of Dougherty's money. The gypsies were arrested and the cash recovered.

SONGSTRESS

Betty Jane Vardy, 10, of Santa Ana, who will be on the program with Jackie Searl and nearly 100 Orange county children at the benefit show at 8 p. m. Monday in the Anaheim high school auditorium.

PET TALKS

By Mrs. J. P. Neal

During the great flood of the Mississippi valley in January and February, the Humane Societies, assisted by army officials, rescued more than 10,000 dogs. Most of these dogs, suffering from exposure and starvation, had to be destroyed.

A kitten cutting teeth is often like human babies teething. They get fretful and sometimes refuse food.

Shall we get a dog? That is a question which comes up at some time or other in nearly every home. It should be considered carefully before the decision is made. It is not a matter to be treated lightly, as the ownership of a dog carries a great deal of responsibility. A dog can bring great happiness or cause a lot of trouble. An enclosed yard is always best, and to my notion, no one should own a dog who does not have an enclosed lot for it. It is a misdirected attempt at kindness to let him wander at will. To be chained does not answer at all—it makes him cross and irritable. The chief cause for all the dogs running at large, causing so much trouble, must be placed upon neglectful owners. Instead of pound-masters taking dogs to the pound, they should take some of the owners. So, before getting a dog, be sure that you will be able to fulfill all the responsibilities of dog ownership.

Maw seed is a bluish grey, round and very small. It is the seed from the porphy. Canaries relish this as a treat but one should feed this very sparingly. It is recommended for certain forms of illness in canaries.

Japan has a very queer dog, called the Raccoon dog. Although it looks like a raccoon it has been declared a true dog.

RED CROSS LIFE SAVING METHODS ARE DEMONSTRATED

ORANGE, June 21.—Demonstrations of life saving and tests in life saving work and swimming were viewed by a large crowd of interested spectators at the Orange city plunge Saturday night. The exhibition closed a week's work in swimming and life saving instruction given by Richard C. Newmeyer, National Red Cross employee.

George Richardson, life guard at the plunge was appointed Red Cross examiner for Orange. He is to continue classes at the plunge which will include a class of 17 seniors and juniors until members are able to pass the required tests. It is expected that the present enrollment will be increased.

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN

PACK ANIMALS OF THE ANDES

FROM the time of the Incas, long before the coming of the white man, the flat-backed, woolly llama was the domesticated beast of burden in the high altitudes of South America. Ranging the heights of Peru and Bolivia, this strange animal not only bore heavy packs for the South American tribes, but also served as food, and as sacrificial offering to the Inca gods.

Although a member of the camel family, the llama hardly resembles the "ship of the desert." For it seldom is found in altitudes lower than 6000 feet, it has a flat back, a long neck and a peculiarly small head. Its feet are divided into two widely separated toes with long, horny nails to permit the animal to scale steep inclines.

When attacked, a group of llamas would form a close circle, tails together, heads out toward their enemies. Approached by a more daring attacker, they would squirt their saliva at him. Caught in an open wound, this fluid would cause almost as dangerous a sore as the venom of a snake.

JERUSALEM (UP)—A search for the sacred Ark of the covenant and the Ten Commandments is being made on Mount Ebal in the Holy Land by an Englishman and an Irishman—the founders of a new London religious society known as the "True Law Party."

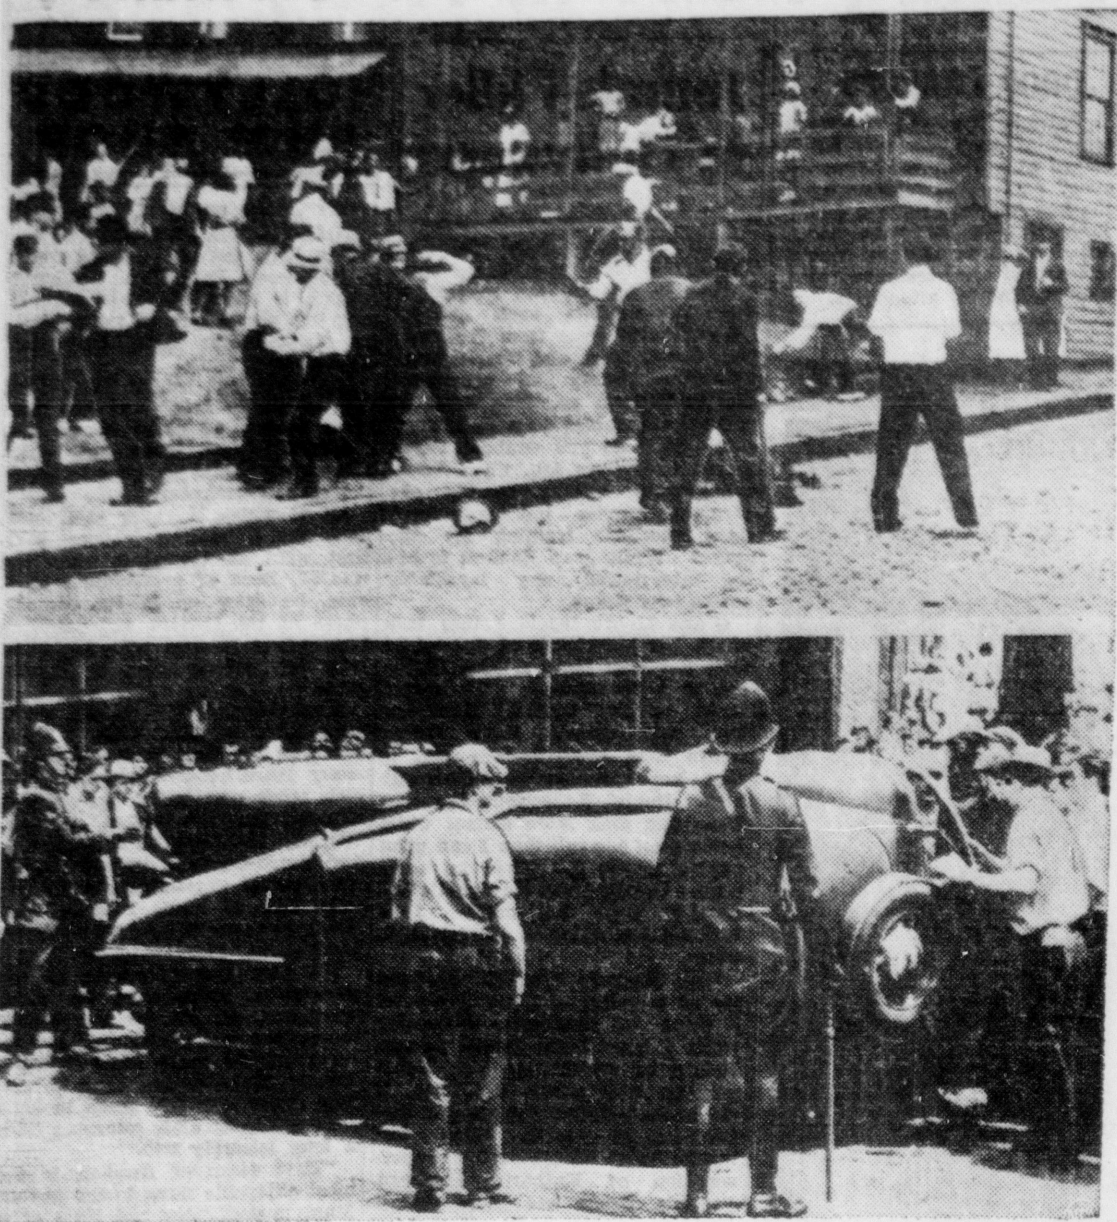

Firemen Guests At La Habra

LA HABRA, June 21.—La Habra volunteer firemen were hosts on Thursday evening to the Orange County Fire Chiefs' association. A 7 o'clock ham dinner was served by the members of the American Legion auxiliary, at the Memorial hall and 21 attended the dinner. A business meeting followed which was conducted by Roy Davis of Fullerton, vice president of the association. Plans were discussed for the presentation of an ordinance for Orange county limiting the kind and discharge of firecrackers. In this ordinance the size of the fireworks would be limited and no overhead fireworks would be allowed except for set display by cities, etc.

At the close of the meeting Percy Owens of Buena Park gave a demonstration of a new fire truck.

Pickets and Workers Clashing at Johnstown

Non-strikers and pickets battled with clubs, stones and fists at the Bethlehem Steel plant in Johnstown, Pa., upper photo, when the workers tried to crash the steel strike picket lines. Two men, a small boy and a small girl were injured. Lower photo shows the over-turned auto of a worker. It was the target of pickets' anger after the driver, strikers said, struck the boy while trying to drive through the lines.

NOT SO GOOD.

In other words this grove could be in lots better condition. However that's the reason you can buy it for $1000 per acre. There are 7 1/2 acres of full bearing Valencias and 2 1/2 acres of lemons. It is served with SAN water on a paved road in a good district. There may be other reasons why you would like to be the owner and a thorough inspection will determine that one way or another.

LOCAL ELKS HONORED

National fame has come to the double quartet of the Santa Ana Elks lodge through its selection to open the national convention to be held next month in Denver.

The selection of the local singers is a signal honor that in the past has been bestowed on some of the outstanding singers of the nation.

In addition to singing at the convention and entering the national contest, the Santa Ana boys will entertain the members of the Denver Lions club and likewise the Rotary club.

Thousands of pieces of Santa Ana literature will be taken back, in addition to several boxes of oranges.

The double quartet, in other words, is going to spread the gospel of Santa Ana to every corner of the nation and act in the capacity of emissaries of good will.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION

Thirty-two Orange County Boy Scouts left aboard the exploration ship Stranger recently, guests of Capt. Fred E. Lewis, who will captain the yacht. The expedition is headed for Alaska, where the party will spend the next four months collecting specimens of northern sea life for museums and scientific study.

Captain Lewis, an Orange county man, through these cruises, is doing much for the youth of the county. The boys act as crew and are under strict discipline throughout the entire time they are away from home.

It's an excellent opportunity for the boys to build up their bodies as well as their minds. While the trip is not one of ease still there is a certain amount of pleasure injected into the cruise.

The Stranger is a sturdy sea-going yacht and before its purchase, more than a year ago, by Captain Lewis, was used in the Baltic Sea and is equipped to combat ice and other conditions experienced in northern waters.

LINN L. SHAW

The passing of Linn L. Shaw removes another pioneer from our midst.

While not actively engaged in business in Santa Ana for some time Mr. Shaw was a familiar figure on the streets of this city and his acquaintanceship was statewide.

Mr. Shaw probably was the pioneer newspaperman of Orange county. Fifty years ago almost to the day of his death Mr. Shaw became city editor of Daily Blade, after having served for nearly a year in the Pacific Weekly Blade. In 1889 with the dissolution of the Daily Blade Mr. Shaw engaged in the printing business, but the more interesting work of the editorial rooms kept calling and in 1893 he purchased a half interest in the Orange County Herald which he edited until 1902 when he sold his interests to the revived Daily Blade.

In 1902 Mr. Shaw was appointed postmaster for Santa Ana and held that position until 1913, during which time many improvements were made in the postal service. When he turned over the reins of postmaster to another in 1913 he entered the real estate business and until his death was, more or less actively, engaged in that line of endeavor.

Mr. Shaw was one of the pioneer and consistent boosters of the city and ever was doing his part for civic betterment, both as an editor and citizen.

Many a young newspaperman was given the kindly advice of the veteran publisher. He never was too busy to aid young newspapermen upon their arrival in the city and many a good "tip" on news stories came from Mr. Shaw.

WORK AMONG CHILDREN

The duties of a judge undoubtedly are most arduous, but most of the jurists in Orange county do not confine their work to the bench.

Take the case of Justice Kenneth E. Morrison.

For years Judge Morrison left the bench at noon Saturday and hurried down to the high school football field where he led the cheering for hundreds of boys and girls. These children were admitted free to the games and Judge Morrison drilled them in high school yells and a few of his own creation. It was play for the kids, but to Judge Morrison it meant something deeper. He was moulding the youth of the city. He was teaching them discipline and loyalty. Many of these boys today are college youths, many have entered business and it's a safe bet that each one remembers the days he sat in the bleachers and yelled for Judge Morrison.

Now the judge is doing another kind of work. He's giving school children throughout the county an opportunity to make a study of courtroom procedure.

Each week Judge Morrison has some class in his courtroom for an entire morning or afternoon session.

The wisdom of Judge Morrison, his ideas of justice, his stern rebukes and kindly advice are absorbed by these children. They see a side of life that the ordinary man or woman will not make an effort to see. They learn a lesson that is not taught in the schoolroom. They see the futility of crime and the rewards for clean living and strict adherence to the Golden Rule.

Judge Morrison's work among children is bound to bring beneficial results.

Sharing the Comforts Of Life—

By R. C. Hoiles

Sharing Comforts by Arbitrary or Wish Wages

A great deal has been said the last few years about wage-earners not being paid in proportion to what they produce—much has been said about the method of establishing wages; how the worker can determine whether he is being paid in proportion to what he produces.

There is no question, that certain groups are being paid more than they produce and as a result others who are working on a competitive basis are of necessity receiving less than they produce. Certainly everyone should be on a competitive basis or none should be on a competitive basis. But if the competitive basis is to be eliminated, then the question arises as to what method should be used as a guide as to wages. That is the question which those who have opposed the competitive system fail to answer. They are absolutely speechless when this question is put to them. They are simply against the method of selecting help on a competitive basis but have no alternative.

Let us analyze briefly a few of the thoughtless answers given as a substitute for competitive method of determining wages.

(1) Paying all workers the same hourly or yearly wage.

This hardly needs an answer because it is only natural for people to want the positions of importance and with little expenditure of human energy. No one would take the difficult, hard jobs without proportionate reward. The result, of course, would be no great sacrifice on anyone's part and all would be scrambling to have the important jobs.

(2) Wages in proportion to needs.

If this be true, of course, the man who had the greatest needs would be the man who would be given the most pay; and the more helpless the individual was, the more right he would have to receive high wages. The result, of course, would be practically no production. So this method must be crossed off the list.

(3) Paying wages by lot or chance.

(4) By seniority—Paying the man in proportion to the length of time he serves.

This, of course, is impractical and needs no answer.

(5) By sharing work.

This would not solve the problem because different people produce different amounts and the question of the rate for each individual would not be solved by prorates.

(6) By rotation.

This again would not solve the problem of the different rates for different people. So this method would be of no value.

The ability to pay theory will be discussed tomorrow.

Walker Most Circuitous and Vociferous

Mr. Walker in his asserted discussion on the subject of whether taxes paid in proportion to ability to pay is a progressive measure, does everything but stick to the subject. He is about as circuitous, vociferous and clamorous as it is possible to be.

Mr. Walker uses our questions as to why the government does not balance the budget as an excuse for doing as Mr. Walker says—writing about "filling in," "blundering" and "predatory" and gives him an opportunity to display his vocabulary of inconsistent and disconnected words.

In discussing any subject, Mr. Walker, can never be any light thrown on the subject unless the questions under discussion are either answered or admitted that they cannot be answered.

We asked you, Mr. Walker, to explain if there were plenty of capital, as you contend there is, why the government has not taxed enough to pay its bills and by so doing retain money of relatively uniform purchasing power. You like to rant about Coolidge and the Republican Party but it will be remembered that we are not attempting to defend the Coolidge administration or the Republican Party. They were in office for 17 years while the laws were in effect that brought on the present condition and they did not repeal them. It might be well to remind Mr. Walker that the laws that have put us in the condition we are now in were passed in 1913; the inflationary prices were the result of the government allowing the banks to issue credit dollars and the government not taxing enough during the Wilson administration to pay its expenses as it went. If we had a sound taxing system that was not based on the socialistic theory of the ability to pay, but was based on what the individual cost the government, then the government could balance the budget on all expense items as it goes along. Then the government could have a sound money system, provided the government did not allow any monopolies of capital or labor to artificially create high prices that demand a constant increase in the medium of exchange in order to prevent those monopolies of capital or labor from taking practically all that is produced.

Now, Mr. Walker, you repeatedly have said there is plenty of capital. Please tell us why the government, under the Hoover and the present administration, does not balance the budget. We, of course, contend that if the government balanced the budget by taxing on the ability to pay theory, they would confiscate so much of the capital of the country that they dare not do so. When the government taxes in proportion to ability to pay, it so rapidly destroys the capital that is being used in increasing the consumer goods needed by the workers that they dare not levy enough tax to pay their bills.

Mr. Walker, it is only 23 years since we started your theory of taxing people in proportion to ability to pay and our national debt of the different subdivisions is $55,000,000,000 and there is no one that we have run across who has ever practiced what he preached and was consistent who believes there is any chance of the federal government balancing the budget in this making it possible for the independent man with small income to be able to save enough to support himself in his old age.

You might contend that the present social security act will make security for the old age but every man who has ever made any pretense of understanding money is honestly convinced that in a few years these taxes that they are taking from the workers, under the guise that it will give them security when they get old, will be paid back to them in dollars that will buy much less than the dollars they are taking from the workers now.

We do not believe this is progressive government; to take from the working man and deprive him of the present comforts of life, by federal insurance tax, in order to keep a lot of inefficient workers on the government payrolls and thus lower the real wages of the actual producers of wealth.

Mr. Walker, you say there are several reasons why they do not balance the budget. Please name the reasons. Or do you not care whether the government maintains a money system that is fair to the worker and the little fellow but plays into the hands of the big gamblers who can borrow large sums at low rates and pay them back with dollars of little value. Stick to the subject, Mr. Walker.

Great thoughts, like great deeds, need no trumpet.

—P. J. Bailey.

General Hugh S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C.—This column has no sympathy with any personal shellacking as was given the President of the United States by the Senate Majority Committee Report on the Court Reorganization Plan. It reeked with enmity, spleen and contempt. It would have been enough to set for the leg of the adverse vote. The problem is too serious to be decided by emotion. A sorely beset President is entitled to more consideration. Any President is entitled to more respect.

But as a thermometer plunged into the heat of the seething cauldron of revolt in the Senate, the passion of this diatribe was informative.

Seven revolutionary communications have gone to the Hill—the Court Plan, the Executive Reorganization Plan, the Farm Plan, the Norris-T. V. A.'s proposal, the new N. R. A. Wages-and-Hours Bill, the Tax Evasion Correspondence Plan, and the Relief Bill with its lump sum provisions and proposals for executive shifting of a part of all appropriations.

They are all in danger of completely collapsing or being so churned up and whittled down that even their own brilliant young synthetic fathers in the new brain trust won't know them. Because of the too-adroit manner of their slick preparation and presentation, their revolutionary content, or the nagging "must" prodding of old Congressional leaders by young wrath and bitterness—and in the process to frustrate or emasculate the Administration's whole legislative program.

No, the strategy hasn't worked. It is a stupid mess, leaving the Administration no alternative but to be content with a mess of face-saving crow's meat and to get the threatening tribes of angry Hill men out of here as quick as God'll let 'em.

It proves again that there is such a thing as being too damned clever.

Right here is the whole point of this piece. In four years as Governor and four years as president, Franklin Roosevelt proved himself the greatest executive genius in "getting along" with a legislature that this country ever produced.

This strategy of sickness and coercion doesn't bear the tool marks of his talents. It is the work of other hands—the first time he ever delegated such a task to the palace janissaries, and allowed himself to be cut off from contact with the troops by an ambitious general staff—and look at the results!

In the World War, Pershing has a rearmament depot to send of fliers who blundered in command back to the commissary department to count potatoes. It was a Blois and the soldiers called it "blooley."

What this Administration needs is a quick new blooley.

Little Benny's Note Book

BY LEE PAPE

Pop came down to breakfast and ma said, Well, Willyum, here's your coffee but I had to make it myself. Believe it or not Nora is on a sitdown strike in the kitchen. There she sits with her arms across her chest and the most impertinent expression across her features, ma said.

Yee gods what's it all about for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, She claims practically every cook in the neighborhood is doing the same thing. It seems some kind of an organizer has been calling at the various back gates and speaking to the various servants, and now it seems they've got a kind of a homestead union and a motto, "Another day off and another dollar." Willyum, you simply must do something about it, you're the man of the house so what do you propose to do about it she said.

Plenty, pop said. If this is the revolution I'm going to suppress it is far as this house is concerned, and if that dictatorship make the most of it, he said, and ma said, But now Willyum, I don't want her to walk bodily out of the house and leave me alone and cookless just so you can have the satisfaction of proving you're a man of action.

Nothing can stop me now, pop said, and Nora's voice out in the kitchen said, If it's me you're discussing I'm ready to do me own discussing.

O dear, what are you going to do Willyum? ma said, and pop said, I think I'll just wait till this evening and give myself time to cool off. After all there's no use being hot headed, he said.

And he rolled up his newspaper and left for his office looking like somebody trying to look more independent than what they felt.

OUR CHILDREN

BY ANGELO PATRI

SENT TO BED AS A PUNISHMENT

"Get him to bed and keep him there for a few days until we can be certain about him. He will be far better off in bed."

"No, no, Dr. Phillip, I don't want to go to bed. I didn't do anything. I don't want to go to bed."

"O, yes you do son. You'll feel better in bed. That ache in your legs will soon go away when you lie in your nice warm bed and rest. Bed's the best place when you don't feel good."

"I don't want to go to bed. I hate going to bed. It's too lonesome."

"You can have picture books, for a short time anyway. Then you'll go to sleep and when you wake up you'll be very much better."

"I won't feel better if I have to go to bed. I want to lie on the couch, and sit in the big chair. I don't want to go to bed until it is night."

The sick child was fighting to stay out of bed because he was used to being sent to bed as a punishment. If he made too much noise—off to bed. If he was naughty—off to bed. If somebody complained about him—to bed he went.

"At least we can have some peace while he is there. And I know where he is," his mother said.

It is not a good practice. Children should know bed as the pleasant place to which they go when they are tired, or sick, and in need of rest and peace. It is a mistake to make a child's associations with his bed so unpleasant as to cause him to dislike going there. It is far better to say, "Your nice bed is waiting for you. You'll feel much better after you have rested there a little while," than to say, "You're a nuisance. The whole family is upset by your continual whining. Go to bed and stay there until I give you permission to get up again." The child may dislike going in either case, but the thought that his mother wanted to give him help and comfort will make the going easier than the thought of punishment will make it.

Healthy children are active. Active children are usually healthy and happy. It is wrong to send an active, healthy child to bed in the daytime because it means a check on activity, and the consequent misery of body and mind. Instead of helping the child as proper punishment ought to do, it makes his condition worse. His body needs to discharge energy. It is likely that the trouble he got into was caused by his inability to discharge it fast enough through proper channels. Lying in bed only dams up the energy, increases its pressure, creates rebellion and sets the stage for disobedience. The pent-up energy must be released even if the child has to find another and a worse method of releasing than before.

If a child is pouting about the house and shouting and slamming things, laughing too loud, doing everything too much, the remedy is not bed, but release in the open air. Send him out with permission to shout and stamp until he exhausts himself. If he is rebellious and cranky, divert him. Wash his face and arms, to the elbows, with warm water and soothing soap. Pat him dry, talking gently to him all the time. Give him a glass of warm milk and a cracker. Tell him a story. Rest him without his knowing it.

When it is bed time, send him to bed, but keep him out of bed for the length of his day, unless he is sick. Then make his bed a haven of refuge.

Mr. Patri has prepared a leaflet entitled, "Changing Habits," in which he tells parents how to overcome a child's unpleasant habits. Send for it, addressing your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, Child Psychology Department of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope. (Copyright, 1937, The Bell Synd., Inc.)

WE, THE PEOPLE

By JAY FRANKLIN

THE STATE DEPARTMENT AND THE LABOR BILL

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A spokesman for the southern textile interests informed the joint committee on the Black-Connery labor standards bill that passage of this minimum-wage, maximum-hours measure would destroy our present foreign policy.

This is an exaggeration but there is no doubt that just as the NRA ended our useful participation in the World Economic Conference at London in 1933, this proposal to enforce decent labor standards through the commerce clause of the constitution may put a crimp in Secretary Hull's trade agreements program.

And so it should. If the price of his policy is the continuation of child-labor, sweated labor and starvation wages, his policy is doomed by its own confession. At the moment, the state department is particularly concerned lest the law jeopardize the proposed trade agreement with Great Britain. This anxiety is pretty far-fetched.

We will never get a liberal trade agreement with the British unless the central European markets are opened up and London and Liverpool resume their old position as entrepot and clearing house for northern and eastern European trade. This is highly unlikely unless Hitler completes the economic unification of central Europe and wins British consent to the political change which this will imply.

Such a development is not so unlikely as it seems. The Blum government in France is being inexorably forced into a policy of bank-note inflation, which will lead to disorders, disunion and general unemployment in the Third Republic, even if by a miracle M. Blum retains control of his government. The latest batch of Soviet executions has certainly cast doubt on the ability of the Red army to play an important part in European affairs during the next year. Mussolini is tangled up in Spain and England will have her hands full without going crazy against Germany's economic expansion. So it is possible that the European situation will jell along lines calculated to help our export trade.

In that case, England in her own interest will make the concessions Mr. Hull desires, without the necessity for our reciprocating. And of course, if central European trade does not revive, any trade-agreement with England would be a futile and ridiculous bit of face-saving. It is even possible that we might deal direct with Germany instead of asking British permission, as in the past. I firmly believe that we can have our trade-agreements program and the Black-Connery Bill, too.

It would be helpful, however, if the Black-Connery Bill should avoid the blunders of the NRA and confine itself to child-labor and to basic industries instead of taking on the whole nation at once. Steel, coal, petroleum, automobiles, construction materials, mining products, lumber, textile, clothing, shoes, rubber, machinery, electricity—there aren't so many of them that the initial set-up would be too complicated and they include the bulk of the nation's workers. Congress could add to the list from time to time, as the need arose, and a trade agreements program could be adjusted so as to protect the basic industries and sacrifice, if necessary, the marginal and un-economic industries.

On the other hand, it is becoming increasingly apparent that the unreconstructed Tories hope to wriggle out from under the New Deal via the state department and through those mysterious diplomatic phrases so dear to the Hoover administration. A world economic conference is the trick which will be pulled on us sooner or later and a lot of nice idealists will rally enthusiastically around the idea that we don't need to reform our institutions if world trade or world peace or what-not is in the air.

This notion is the real danger to Mr. Hull's program. It is up to him to demonstrate that there is no essential conflict between orderly foreign trade relations and domestic reform.

The state department is all in a dither. Assistant Secretary of State Wilbur J. Carr has taken the first licking in his bureaucratic history. After an internal dispute which drey in the White House, G. Howard Shaw received the job of director of foreign service personnel and the Carr protegee was passed over. Bob Kelley, special pleader for the old anti-Soviet policy, has been nominated for a consul-generalship and, if confirmed, is to be sent far afield.

Hugh Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, is under consideration for the vacant post of assistant secretary of state. It is not the happiest appointment which could have been made, because it suggests that the state department is still hankering for another orgy of peace-mongering and irresponsible disarmament.

Wilson is our expert on disarmament and the League of Nations, and knows the principal European diplomats. He will be used as a policy-expert and not allowed to have a finger in foreign service administration or personnel.
